What Magic Word?
A Fighting Widow.
Must the Empire Fall?
The Church in Russia.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. NORRIS, one of the most earnest, honest men in the Senate, thinks President Hoover could, if he would, make prohibition an immediate success.

Nobody wants that more than Mr. Hoover wants it. He wants it so earnestly that he almost thinks prohibition is a success now.

SENATOR NORRIS says: "One sentence from the White House would end corruption."

It would have to be a powerful sentence, far surpassing in efficacy the magic word "abracadabra."

What sentence would persuade bootleggers, hijackers and the army of public officials on their payroll to give up their profits?

IN NEBRASKA, Mr. Norris' own state, last Saturday, young men, determined to have alcohol, drank an anti-freeze mixture. Five died, several are dangerously ill.

What sentence from the White House would have prevented that?

It is not fair to the President to say that he is not, with all his heart, for prohibition.

But no word of his, backed by the entire Army and Navy which he commands, plus all the resources of the National Treasury, could keep men from drinking if they were determined to drink.

That has been proved in history a hundred times.

MEN who think women should fight, if they want to vote, would approve a lady called "the widow Chang," in China.

She leads a most dangerous, desperate gang of bandits, steals everything that can be carried, cuts the throats of all that resist, and persuades her followers that she is bullet proof. Many leaders have advanced that theory, until some bullet spoiled it.

THE fighting widow, only 30, called "Marshal," has been offered high command in the regular army if she would reform and cut throats according to law. She likes her job and has been imitated by other Chinese women.

DO NOT think there is anything that women cannot do, if they put their minds on it, of course excepting the production of the very highest works of genius.

Nature will not let them do those things. They may concentrate on the production of first class children.

Doubtless, when the world is fully populated and each woman limited to two children, women will do all that men do, and better.

NORMAN ANGELL, British member of Parliament, prophesies the end of Britain's Empire. But his reasons are not convincing.

He says acts of Parliament have no force in Britain's dominions, and the British government has no real authority in them.

What of it? Among civilized men, the word of one has no authority in the family of another. That does not keep them from sticking together in emergencies.

ASK a Canadian, Australian or South African at what price he would advocate selling his dominion to the United States. That will tell you how British he is.

IF BRITAIN'S empire did collapse, it would be a sad day for hundreds of millions among so-called inferior races, thus called because they ARE inferiors.

UNDER British rule, India's population has risen from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000. Let Britain withdraw from India, by compulsion or otherwise, and you would see the British-created 100,000,000 melt away.

FAMINE and disease would do their old work. The bonfires of "suttee" would be blazing, young widows burning alive beside their old husbands' corpses, in the good old way.

And savage Afghans would start the work that Britain prevents and carry out their promise to "kill one half the Hindus and make the rest slaves."

DR. COUNTS, of Teachers' College, Columbia University, warns religious heads, protesting against Russian suppression of churches, that their protests make matters worse.

He reminds protesting church dignitaries that the Russian church was worse than the Czar's government and the noble landowners in keeping peasants in ignorance and poverty.

"THE CHURCH," says Dr. Counts, "was one of the most effective means by which the ruling classes maintained themselves in power."

Russia's peasants are religious and intensely superstitious. But they know that their church would give back to nobles and monasteries lands that Lenin gave them.

They do not want that.

THE Prince of Wales, hunting in Africa, killed an elephant, among other animals. The elephant, most intelligent of animals, fast becoming extinct in a wild state, is gentle, harms no one, if not attacked. Killing so huge a creature, which is like shooting a barn, must be unpleasant.

HOWEVER, it is necessary for a "true sportsman," royalty especially, to include the killing of elephants, lions and tigers in life's record, and the elephant could not have lived above 50 or 100 more years, anyhow.

LABOR HIGH, RENTS LOW, QUIZ FINDS

Realty Board Probers Favor Closing of One Building For Lack of Patronage

Excessive operating costs, extravagance and waste are apparent in the administration of Pittsburgh's three market houses, an investigating committee of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board declares in a report made today to Councilman W. Y. English. Abandonment of South Side market is recommended.

To determine if other city-owned rented property is being operated as inefficiently the investigators who performed their task at the request of city Council, asks that it be empowered to broaden its investigation especially to include the Exposition Building. President J. W. Cree, of the Real Estate Board, made the market house report.

LABOR COST HIGH

Its highlights:

1—Your committee finds in all three of the building excessive operating costs, extravagance and waste, principally in payroll items and recommends immediate reduction of labor expense.

2—Recommends abandonment of South Side market as a market house because it is not generally patronized and that it be converted into a community welfare plant.

3—City is furnishing tenants at Diamond and North Side market with free light, free elevator service, free heat, free janitor service, and in Diamond Market free refrigeration, including equipment.

4.—Recommends such services be immediately discontinued.

RENTALS CALLED LOW

5.—Rentals in all three market houses are below the standards for such establishments in privately owned structures.

6.—Believe city is losing considerable potential income because of low-priced leases.

7—Recommends Council authorize an investigation of all city-leased property by the Real Estate Board and that it make proper recommendations.

8—Seeks in particular to investigate the leases on the Exposition Building.

FIGHT TO START ON TAXI BAN

Cab company officials are expected to make the first move today toward resumption of service peremptorily halted by police last week under the proclamation of Mayor Charles H. Kline after an alleged strike sympathizer was killed by a city patrolman called to quell an attack upon a convoy of cabs.

Whether the move will take the form of an appeal to the mayor, or attorneys for the Parmelee Company, owner of the Green and Yellow Cab Companies, will take the matter into court was not revealed. Neither Attorney C. K. Robinson, acting for the company, nor E. S. Higgins, vice president of Parmelee, would reveal the course of action, but both indicated that something would be done.

The possibility of an appeal to the courts to have Mayor Kline held in contempt has been hinted, inasmuch as an injunction is in

JANE THURSTON WEDS HARRIS

A whirlwind courtship culminating in the marriage here six weeks ago of Jane Thurston, daughter of Howard Thurston, the magician, and Harry Harris, 24, son of the late Senator John P. Harris, was revealed today by the newlyweds in Cincinnati where the bride is appearing with her father in an extravaganza.

The courtship, an ardent display of "love at first sight," was no secret to Mr. and Mrs. Thurston, through whom the son of one of their closest Pittsburgh friends met his bride. But the marriage, performed so secretly that even the magician father had not the slightest inkling, was looked upon today in the Thurston family as daughter Jane's outstanding achievement in necromancy.

VERY HAPPY

"We're all very happy," Thurston told the Sun-Telegraph in a long-distance telephone conversation this morning.

"Mrs. Thurston and I, of course, should have preferred

Swedish Queen Near Death in Rome

ROME, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The Queen of Sweden, who has been seriously ill here, today had sunk so low that her life was despaired of.

It was said the Queen, who for many years has suffered from pulmonary trouble, appeared on the point of death. It was possible that she might survive for several weeks.

Her second son, Prince Wilhelm, Duke of Soedermanland, arrived here today. King Gustave has been here for some time.

Police Mistake Negro Star as Dope Peddler

Jules Bledsoe, Negro star who sang "Ole Man River" in "Showboat" here last week, has a poor opinion of Pittsburgh's police department.

It was revealed today that Bledsoe and two city detectives—Walter Monahan and Tommie Morgan—tangled in an argument of words and indignation in the Hill district last Saturday.

The sleuths were seeking a dope peddler who was known to travel in a car bearing New York license plates. When they saw such a car carrying five occupants they hailed it. It was the wrong car.

Bledsoe became indignant at being questioned. He and his friends were hustled to Central Police Station. More indignation. A threatened suit.

Bledsoe was not locked up but it required 20 minutes or more to satisfy the sleuths that he was Bledsoe. He reached the theater just in time for the matinee.

SUPREME COURT HEARS SNOOK'S FINAL PLEA

Counsel Fights Desperately For Stay to Save Slayer And Have Case Reviewed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Fighting doggedly to save their client from death in the electric chair in Ohio state prison next Friday, attorneys for Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Theora Hix, will file with the Supreme Court late today a petition for a writ of certiorari.

If this writ is granted the Supreme Court will review the case. If denied it means the attorneys for the college professor will have to turn to the state of Ohio to save their client from execution.

FILING PERMITTED

Just before noon the court permitted Snook's attorneys, E. O. Ricketts and Arthur M. Spiegel, to file the petition, and indicated that a decision would be made by the full court before tomorrow night.

This was unusual, as customarily after application is made to file a writ, the other side is given 20 days to file objections. In this case, however, John J. Chester, Jr., prosecutor of Snook, consented to the filing, presumably in order to speed final disposition of the federal end of the case.

ONE JUSTICE AGAINST PLEA

Snook's attorneys resorted to the writ after unsuccessfully appealing to Associate Justice McReynolds for a stay of execution.

Justice McReynolds rendered no definite decision on the request, but indicated he was not favorably disposed toward it. The decision of the court in chambers to permit the filing of the application followed after a conference with all the attorneys.

Baby Born in Taxi Driven by Striker

In an auto which was rushing her to the Magee Hospital, Mrs. Mary Shires, of Verona boulevard, East End, today gave birth to a nine-pound baby boy.

The driver, Harry Nation, in an emergency car of the striking taxicab drivers, had taken her from her home.

The mother and child were both doing well, the hospital reported. It was the second time a baby has been born in Nation's machine.

Rising Mercury, Rain Is Forecast

Rain is to top off the spring-like weather menu which has been Pittsburgh's portion for the past several days, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. Rain is predicted for both today and tomorrow. Slightly warmer weather is in store, with low temperatures ranging from 50 to 55 degrees predicted for tonight.

Good News!

Jane Thurston, daughter of Howard Thurston, the magician, and Harry Harris, son of the late Senator John P. Harris, reveal marriage here six weeks ago.

No really cold weather is in sight, according to Pittsburgh's weather forecaster, although "false spring" is near end.

DEATH THREATS SENT FORMER PRESIDENT

'Gunman Is Going to Kill You,' Letter Informs Former Executive in West

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Death threats reached former President Calvin Coolidge in his apartment at the Biltmore Hotel today.

Police went into action to protect the former chief executive of the nation and his wife from possible harm.

A city-wide search was begun for two persons—the man who is reported to have threatened the life of the former President and the man who sent an impassioned warning through the mail to Mrs. Coolidge, but signed only his initials.

OPENS LETTER

Ex-President Coolidge himself opened the letter of warning. He read it slowly.

"There's something for you," he said pointedly, as he handed the letter over the William F. Haynes, police lieutenant of the intelligence bureau, who has been chief of the Coolidge guard since Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge arrived in Los Angeles more than a week ago.

The ill-spelled letter, mailed at 6:30 p. m. Saturday in a pre-stamped envelope, read:

"Hon. Mrs. C. Coolidge:

"I would like to warn you that a gunman murderer from the East arrived in Los Angeles and he said Mr. Coolidge is going to make a trip back East in a coffin because he is going to kill him, so for God's sake be careful and protect yourself and Mr. Coolidge because he sure will do it. His brother is in a penitentiary for bootlegging.

"WILL PRAY FOR YOU"

"God bless you and protect you and I will pray for you and remain your friend."

Police refused to divulge the initials signed to the letter and turned it over to identification and handwriting experts in an effort to trace the sender and learn, if possible, the identity of the man who threatened to kill Coolidge.

11 DIE, 100 HURT IN WRECK

KENOSHA, Wis., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Eleven persons were killed and at least 100 were injured when a Chicago-bound passenger train of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric Railroad struck an automobile at a grade crossing just north of Kenosha late last night and was derailed.

The automobile was hurled directly into the path of a northbound freight train, as the five cars of the passenger train left the track and piled into an eight-foot ditch.

The first car of the passenger train, which was traveling nearly 60 miles an hour, buried its nose for many feet in the soft mud of the ditch. The car behind piled into it. The three rear cars also went into the ditch, but their passengers were more fortunate than those in the two forward cars.

The dead included two men who were riding in the automobile.

There were 59 men, women and

Hughes Takes Oath as 11th Chief Justice of U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The oath of constitutional allegiance was administered to Charles Evans Hughes shortly before noon today at the beginning of the short ceremony attending his induction into office as chief justice.

The pledge was administered in the robing room of the court in the presence of the other justices.

In all, the highest tribunal interrupted its routine for just six minutes to mark the transition from the tenth to the eleventh chief justice of the United States.

The pause included, however, a solemn moment heavy with sadness as Justice Holmes, standing beside the empty chair at the center of the bench, announced formally the resignation of William Howard Taft because of the critical illness which now keeps him in seclusion.

His successor ascended and took the vacant place with firm step, the picture of health and vigor despite his 68 years. His hair and beard, almost black when he left the bench 14 years ago to become his party's candidate for president, was nearly white today when he returned, and his countenance seemed to have lost much of the austerity of earlier years. But his broad shoulders still had the carriage of youth, and his manner the quickness and spontancity of many who are his juniors.

Clears Boys

H. H. GROSKLOSS

PITTSBURGHER CLEARS BOYS

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Amherst College officials had a long conference yesterday with Scarab, senior student organization, as to the origin of the freshmen-sophomore cap-burning battle, in which five undergraduates received severe face and body burns, and the clothing of many others caught fire.

H. H. Groskloss, of Pittsburgh, president of the student honor committee in charge of the cap burning, exonerated his companions of blame. He told the faculty that the original plans of the sophomore class were not carried out in that some one had substituted kerosene for water in the Sophomore attack on the unsuspecting Freshmen.

At the time of the battle a truck filled with Sophomores appeared on top of College Hill. The second-year men formed in a body and advanced on the Freshmen. When they had scattered pails of kerosene on the assembled yearlings, the flaming torches carried by the sophs quickly set fire to the clothing of several students. Rolling in the snow was the only means of putting out the flames.

Little Change Noted In Taft's Condition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Little change was noted today in the condition of ex-Chief Justice William H. Taft.

The physicians' bulletin at noon said: "The former chief justice had a comfortable night. There is no material change in his condition."

FOUR YOUTHS HELD IN CAR ROBBERIES, HOLDUP

Suspects Admitting Robbery Of Woman in Squirrel Hill Linked in Wounding Man

Four students, three of Westinghouse High School and the fourth of Duquesne University, in Morals Court today admitted stealing automobiles and holding up a Negro woman in Squirrel Hill, over the week-end.

The four were arrested at Shady avenue and Tilbury street last night when they were observed acting in a suspicious manner, police testified.

They gave their names as John McCabe, 19, of 7217 Hermitage street; Charles Boehm, 18, of 621 Brushton avenue; Valoris Haffey, 19, of 545 North Braddock avenue, all Westinghouse High School students, and Edward Reilly, 21, of 7130 Hermitage street, student at Duquesne University.

TOOK AUTO FOR PARTY

They admitted, before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, being implicated in stealing a car Friday night belonging to Otto Anderson, of 7617 Penn avenue. Haffey testified he had taken the car to go to a party. Afterward he took several girls home, he said, then abandoned the machine.

Saturday the four recovered the car, Heffey testified, abandoned it a second time, then stole another car owned by Harry Rom, of 6376 Morrowfield avenue.

Last night while riding in the car in Pittock street, Reilly and McCabe leaped out and held up a negro woman.

"Don't take the purse boys, there is only a quarter in it," she pleaded with them, they said, but they took it anyhow. It contained 25 cents and five rings.

RINGS RECOVERED

Police said the rings were found in Reilly's possession, along with a revolver and a pair of knucklers. Reilly explained the knucklers by saying he had borrowed them in anticipation of a fight at a high school basketball game.

W. A. Graff, of 561 South Negley avenue, at the hearing partly identified Reilly as one of several holdup men who shot at him, inflicting a slight wound, last night after he refused to heed their command of "hands up" near his home.

Police believe the four may be implicated in numerous holdups, they say. They were held over until detectives investigate.

Chief Deputy Coroner Harry T. Ewing, after 22 years' service, today made known his decision to resign rather than accept a demotion. He will be succeeded by Deputy John S. Aldisert, of Carnegie. Ewing was offered Aldisert's position by Coroner William J. McGregor, but declined it.

Ewing entered the coroner's office in 1907 and had served under the administrations of Joseph G. Armstrong, Samuel R. Jamison and McGregor. He is a member of an old Pittsburgh family and for many years has resided in the Oakland district.

EXPENSE LIMIT REACHED, PRESIDENT WARNS CONGRESS

URGES CARE TO AVOID DEFICIT

Must Quit Spending, Hoover Bluntly Tells Leaders At Breakfast Parley

International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—President Hoover assembled the Republican leaders in Congress about the White House breakfast table this morning and bluntly told them that the limit has been reached on congressional expenditures—that unless Congress draws the purse-strings tight for the balance of this session a treasury deficit is in sight which can only spell increased taxes later on.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Assistant Secretary Ogden Mills and Budget Director J. O. Roop, were also present and supported the President's economy plea with facts and figures on the government's present and prospective revenues. These revenues are not going to permit any appropriating by Congress outside the budget figures, they warned.

LEADERS ATTEND

Among the breakfast guests were Senator Watson, of Indiana the Senate leader; Senator McNary, of Oregon assistant leader; Senator Jones, of Washington chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee; Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the House leader; Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the Rules Committee; Representative Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Walter H. Newton, the President's liaison secretary with Congress.

The drain on federal finances occasioned by the Farm Board appropriations, the public buildings program, and lesser governmental projects, coupled with the $160,000,000 tax reduction granted in December and the prospect of reduced revenues from income taxes in March, due to the 1929 stock slump, have combined to make the government's fiscal situation anything but rosy, the legislators were informed.

HUGE SUM ASKED

If Congress will refrain from any extraordinary appropriations, other than those already approved and those contained in the huge supply bills, it is probable that the Treasury can escape a deficit, but not otherwise.

One of the Congressional guests later described the White House session as "a tightwad breakfast."

"We were told we can't spend any more money," he said.

It was disclosed that there are now pending in Congress in one form or another bills which would require expenditures of some $1,600,000,000 outside of the regular budgetary estimates.

force against interference with the company's operations.

PEACE HOPE FADES

Meanwhile rumors of peace and arbitration have vanished with the reiterated determination of the strikers' executive committee to stand "four-square" for recognition of their union, so emphatically opposed by officials of the companies.

"We have taken solemn oaths," A. T. Siford, chairman of the strikers' committee declared, "to hold out for the union. We are willing and waiting to talk with anyone of authority concerning a settlement, but we will not arbitrate without full recognition of our grievance committee and demands for recognition."

A handbill headed "Facts About the Taxi Strike," which tells the drivers' side of the controversy, is being distributed. Two strikers were arrested and fined $10 each for distributing them yesterday. They are Steve Barish and Wilbert Fornof.

The handbill charges "brutal and inhuman treatment of the men" and states "this strike has been brewing for the past four years." Under the subheads of "Accident cases" and "Towing charges" the handbill goes into detail concerning alleged regulations which the strikers point out as unfair.

MEN REBUFFED

"The first peaceful attempt to settle the strike was turned down by the Parmelee Corporation officials who bluntly refused to meet the duly elected committee representing the men," says the circular. A second meeting of the taxi drivers' committee and Parmelee Corporation officials lasted eight hours when a tentative proposal for settlement of the strike was formulated. At the conclusion of this tentative proposal the Parmelee Corporation was asked by the drivers' committee through Secretary of Labor Davis that the operation of cabs should not resume until the strikers' official committee notified the men to go back to work.

"The tentative proposal was presented to the men and before the official vote of the meeting was known the Parmelee corporation was operating cabs. How could anyone have faith after such trickery."

Cut in Postal Hours Assured by Kelly

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Addressing the Philadelphia National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pittsburgh, criticized Postmaster General Brown "for his opposition to the 44-hour bill for postal employes."

He declared, however, that both the 44-hour bill now in the hands of the House committee and the measure liberalizing the provisions of the retirement act would be enacted into law by the present Congress.

NEWS OF STRIKE FOUND FAIR

All Pittsburgh daily newspapers have been fair to both sides in the publication of news concerning the taxicab strike, according to a report made today by a special committee of clergymen to the Methodist Episcopal Ministers' Association in the Methodist Building. The statement was made following a searching investigation by the committee and interviews with the editors of the newspapers.

Composing the committee were the Rev. Dr. W. W. T. Duncan, chairman; the Rev. W. S. Boyd, the Rev. A. G. Curry and the Rev. C. T. Murdock. It was appointed following an address by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, in which he was quoted as declaring that the newspapers had misrepresented the facts, failing to give the strikers' side of the case. The report stated in part:

"We believe that the newspapers have sought to be fair to both sides in the publication of the news. They have verified all the facts and we believe that their columns have been open to all shades of opinion during the present strike."

STRIKERS TAKE OATH AT GRAVE

Over the grave of William F. Dreibhold, victim of strike disorder, 275 striking taxicab drivers today took oath to their cause.

In St. Mary's Cemetery the drivers' leader, A. T. Siford, read the oath as the strikers stood with right hands over their hearts.

"I do solemnly swear," Siford read, "to accept nothing from these corporations only what this boy died for."

The burial was preceded by services this morning in St. Joseph's Catholic Church at Pearl street and Liberty avenue.

Led by two motorcycle patrolmen and two automobiles loaded with flowers, members and officers of the striking cab drivers' organization moved in procession from Dreibold's home, Yew and Mathilda streets, to the church.

Hundreds lined the streets as the cortege passed.

One of the floral designs was the replica of a taxicab, fashioned from 1,200 carnations and inscribed with the name and number of the drivers' union.

Dreibhold was shot and killed last Wednesday night in Grant street by a motorcycle patrolman after cabs had been stoned. He was a sympathizer of the strikers and a Green Cab driver six years ago.

Coroner W. J. McGregor opened the inquest into Dreibold's death late today. About 20 witnesses are to be heard.

The airplane burst into flames, but Kelly was able to extricate himself. Reports said 242 pounds of mail was burned.

PINCHOT HERE, MUM ON STATE POLITICS

Former Governor Delivers 2 Speeches; Vare Won't Quit, Mackey Intimates

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot spoke at the luncheon was to appear again this evening in the Bellevue High School, under auspices of the borough board of trade, tonight.

His speech at noon was on his South Seas tour.

He arrived yesterday to attend the funeral of Ambassador A. P. Moore, but shed no light on his reported intention of running for governor or senator, or his views on state politics.

Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, also here for the Moore rites, declined to make any political comment.

It was learned today that Mackey believes William S. Vare is determined to run for senator against Joseph R. Grundy, slated by the Republican organization with Samuel S. Lewis as candidate for governor.

MACKEY FOR GRUNDY

Mackey has announced support of Senator Grundy, but has not declared his choice for governor.

The Philadelphia Mayor is of the opinion that members of that city's political "war board," who recently returned from a visit to Vare's Florida home, failed in efforts to induce him to withdraw. The "war board's" suspected plan was to offer Grundy the withdrawal of Vare in exchange for slating Francis Shunk Brown for governor instead of Lewis.

VARE NOT DEALING

Mackey seemed convinced that Vare would not be a party to any deal that removed him as a candidate for senator. Vare feels the voters might be persuaded to "rebuke" the Senate for rejecting him, according to the Mayor. He believes Vare is not primarily concerned over Brown's announced candidacy for governor and would prefer Lieut. Gov. Arthur James as a running mate.

On the other hand, Grundy never considered dropping Lewis and accepting Brown as a salve to Philadelphia in the interest of harmony, in Mackey's opinion, although he believes Brown would not be a stalking horse by permitting Vare to select another running mate in opposition to the organization ticket.

DRY LAW QUIZ SIDETRCKED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Action on the various proposals for a sweeping inquiry into prohibition enforcement was postponed for two weeks by the Senate Judiciary Committee today to prevent the dry war interfering with passage of the pending tariff bill.

Attorney General William D. Mitchell and George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, will be invited to appear before the committee Monday, March 10. Both will be questioned about enforcement conditions, proposals for improving enforcement and prohibition conditions generally. After hearing Mitchell and Wickersham, the committee then will determine whether a separate senatorial investigation is justified.

The delay was proposed by Senator Ashurst (Dem.), of Arizona, a dry. He moved for postponement of action on the Wheeler and Norris resolutions for two weeks and suggested calling Mitchell and Wickersham. The motion carried overwhelmingly. It was decided, too, that the conference with Mitchell and Wickersham should be behind closed doors.

to know about it, but we are very proud of our son-in-law.

"It's just one of Jane's little tricks," he added, laughing.

The romance began during the early part of the Thurstons' appearance at the Alvin Theater here about six weeks ago.

Jane, who made her stage and social debut last season, was at the height of her stage success in a combined musical and magic show with her father.

"MARVELOUS"

Young Harris presented himself to the magician in his suite in William Penn Hotel. Thurston had been a close friend of the young man's father, the late senator.

"I've seen the show," Harris explained to the magician. "Your daughter is marvelous—she's—"

Jane appeared on the threshold as if by magic. From then on Harris was in constant attendance.

When the show left Pittsburgh, playing Youngstown and Akron, Harris made frequent week-end trips to be with his bride. In Pittsburgh a few days ago he confided to a friend that he was going to visit the Thurstons in Cincinnati this week-end.

WELL-KEPT SECRET

They kept their secret well. It was not until after yesterday's matinee that the couple broke the news to the bride's parents.

"We were married one afternoon," they explained, "when there was no matinee in Pittsburgh."

They received the parental blessings, and plans for the future were discussed. Jane will continue with her father, finishing the season's stage bookings, while Harris returns to Pittsburgh.

children under treatment at two Kenosha hospitals early today. Their injuries included broken arms, legs and ribs, skull fractures, internal injuries and bruises. The condition of at least 10 was pronounced critical.

At least 50 other passengers of the train were treated at the hospitals and then released.

It was the first time in 10 years that a passenger on the North Shore line had met death in an accident, the company said. The line has been awarded national recognition both for speed and safety in recent years.

The automobile was traveling on Route 43, north-bound, when the passenger train bore down along the straightaway stretch. The train struck the car squarely, just as the 16-car freight train was approaching from the south. The machine was momentarily wedged between the two trains—before the passenger train left the rails. Several freight cars were derailed; but they remained upright.

First reports that the freight caught fire were incorrect.

DEAD BURIED IN DEBRIS

The horror of the scene was the greater because of the darkness, the scores of injured frantically crying for help and fumbling their way out of the debris.

Motorists passing on the highway were first to give aid. The injured were placed in machines and taken to the Kenosha and St. Catherine's hospitals. Several minutes later ambulances, doctors and nurses were at work.

Several of the dead were buried in the debris of the first car, and it was necessary to burn through the steel coach to remove their bodies.

A steady rain hampered work of wreckage crews, but by 10 o'clock the two rear coaches of the wrecked passenger train had been hoisted out of the muddy ditch. A more difficult task lay ahead in raising the other three coaches, and workers said it still was possible they would find additional victims beneath the wreckage of the front cars.

The train was carrying an unusually heavy load, due to the fact that many Chicagoans were returning from the double holiday in Wisconsin.

RUSSIA SEES WAR THREAT BY NATIONS

Soviets Cry Battle in Face Of Christian Protests Against Closing Churches

MOSCOW, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Despite the campaign abroad against the Soviet government for its attitude toward religion, Soviet authorities in different parts of the union have closed a number of additional churches, synagogues and mosques.

These, it was declared, were shut "upon petition of the workers and peasants."

Tass dispatches today reported that Soviet officials closed three churches, three mosques, one synagogue and one Polish church in Alma-Ata, capital of the Province of Kazakstan.

In Karabudakhkent, capital of the Dagestan republic whose population is predominantly Mohammedan, the authorities closed no less than 13 mosques. Ecclesiastical objects removed from the latter including rich rugs and mosaics were sold and the money converted into American tractors for the new collective farms.

Another Tass dispatch said that in Tyer, Central Russia, the Soviet officials decided to close a local synagogue and to convert it into a club "upon the insistent demand of laboring Jews."

CRY OF WAR

Efforts of various religious agencies to prevent persecution of religious elements in Soviet Russia were made the basis by the Soviet press and politicians for a loud cry of war. Appearing coincidentally with celebration of the twelfth anniversary of the founding of the Red army, the pro-religious movement aroused a considerable furore.

Communist papers and leaders ...ed to the country to be on ...gainst the menace from ...tic powers, which were ... jealous of the Soviet's ... industrial progress. Soviet neighbors intend, ... to inaugurate either ... measures against their go... a direct military attack.

"All the ... reaction throughout ... be mobilized against ... union which is going ... ahead toward Socialism, ... declared in a front-... ## CHICAGO BANDIT KILLS OFFICER

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Policeman John Ryan was shot and fatally wounded here today in a gun battle with an alleged robber at a rooming-house.

Ryan received a tip that Joseph Fallon, wanted on a robbery charge, was hiding in a rooming-house. As the policeman opened the door he was met with a volley of gunfire. Ryan fell mortally wounded as Fallon ran from the house and leaped into a taxicab, witnesses said.

Deportation proceedings were begun today against 14 underworld characters who appeared in a group of 305 at a police showup last night as Chicago continued its war on gangsters and hoodlums.

Approximately 950 minor gangsters, hoodlums and gunmen were seized in week-end raids on underworld hangouts.

Clues to Lost Mail Flier Found on Mountain

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Union Pacific Railroad officials here received a telegram from their agent at Caliente, Nev., which said that three cowboys had discovered clues on Irish Mountain near Hiko, Nev., which they believed would reveal the fate of Maurice Graham, Western Air Express pilot, missing since January 10.

Irish Mountain is 120 miles northeast of Las Vegas, Nev.

The cowboys, Paul, Lewis, and J. C. Stewart, brothers, said they found a pistol, empty cartridges and "other equipment" while driving cattle to pastures. They refused to reveal what the "other equipment" included, saying they wished first to file a claim for the "liberal reward" offered for discovery of Graham's body.

Graham took off from Las Vegas, January 10, on a night mail run to Salt Lake City, U. A snowstorm blocked his route and no trace of him has been found since.

Lady Astor Lauds Envoys Of U. S. in Radio Talk

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Lady Nancy Astor, England's American-born peeress, spoke from London to an international radio audience and urged the women of America and Britain to "press on and force our countries to lead the way to peace."

She expressed optimism concerning the five-power naval conference and reminded her listeners that the Kellogg peace pact must always be kept in "the front of the picture."

Her address was broadcast in this country over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

Congratulating the United States on its delegates to the naval conference, Lady Astor said:

"They have made an amazingly good impression. I have met them, one and all.

"Your delegates are tackling their jobs in the right spirit; they are showing a good Yankee spirit. They are not talking too much, but they seem to know what they want and feel pretty certain that in the long run they will get it. I hope and expect they will succeed."

MOUNTAIN PUPILS FLOCK TO SCHOOL FOUNDED BY HOOVER

BAREFOOTED LAD FIRST AT CLASS

So Excited He Forgets His Breakfast; Grandmother Walks 2 Miles to Attend

DARK HOLLOW, Va., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Ray Burraker, the barefoot mountain boy who first interested President Hoover in the children in this mountain community, got up at 5 o'clock this morning to be the first to arrive for the opening of the Hoover school and was so excited that he forgot to eat breakfast.

Mr. Hoover decided to have the school established after he became interested in the children here as a result of young Burraker strolling into his fishing camp near here one day last summer and presenting the President with a possum.

20 PUPILS ARRIVE

Besides Burraker, about 20 pupils arrived for the opening of the school, the first in this neighborhood.

Eleven-thirty was the hour for school work to begin. The classes, however, could have started almost with sunrise, as there was one group of pupils that had no intention of being late.

Besides the children, many grown folks also were on hand.

Grandmother and Grandfather L. B. Burraker were among the first to arrive. Grandmother Burraker walked nearly two miles to the school building despite her 71 years. She said she had to come because she had eight grandchildren who would attend the school.

Grandfather Burraker said the reason he came was that he thought possibly Mr. Hoover would be here and he would like to have a word with him.

LIKES RADIO

Nine-year-old George Burraker was the most talkative student. He said he liked the radio that Mr. Hoover installed here. He said the funniest thing he had heard over it was a mule heehawing.

Probably the quaintest dressed little girl was Celia Burraker, 11 years old, the only one of the feminine contingent to wear a hat. It was of orange color with morning glories around it. She trudged nearly two miles, bringing a small brother.

TEAR GAS ENDS STRIKE PARADE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Feb. 24.—Waves of tear gas repelled a march of 300 striking Communist early this morning at Powhatan Mine, where a strike has been in progress for the last three weeks.

Unable to see the column of strikers due to a fog, the 30 armed deputy sheriffs were unaware of their presence until within a few feet of the mine property, the column headed by a makeshift band, suddenly came to life with cat calls and yells. They were met by a barrage of gas bombs which exploded directly in their midst.

Wild confusion followed and the marchers were completely routed.

At ten o'clock today the strikers had disbanded but promised another march this evening. Sheriff Fred Moore said arrests would be made of the leaders in case they march again.

POISONER TELLS OF 10TH MURDER

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—James Bakerien, the jaunty, bragging, alleged "poison-fiend murderer," obligingly confessed today to a brand-new murder—his tenth—to Depuey Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

Bakerien confided Mulrooney said, that just a month before his arrest in detroit he had murdered a taxi driver named South.

"I killed him," Bakerien said, "because I needded the dough. I got a watch and $18 off him."

He said he forced the cab driver into nan unfinished garage, shot and killed him and rifled his pockets and pawned the watch.

Mulrooney said the facts of the latest murder confession of the tatooed sailor had been confirmed by Michigan police.

Apparently enjoying his prominence before 200 detectives in the lineup at police headquarters, Bakerein told how he poisoned Henry Gaw, watchman at the Guggenheim laboratories.

He said he was 23 years old, unmarried, and a native of Pittsburgh.

Two detectives who guarded Bakerein on the train en route here from Detroit, said they found a pistol and stiletto on his person during the trip, and reported he confessed intending to kill them at Pittsburgh and escape.

Today the prisoner grew indignant when Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney, who questioned him, seemed to doubt his confession of killing Gaw.

Gas Analyst Despondent, Writes Wife, Kills Self

Leaving a letter to his estranged wife, in which he wrote of unhappiness and disappointments, Robert L. Andrews, 22, a gas analyst at the United States Bureau of Mines, committed suicide, police say, in his rooming house at 328 North Craig street, this morning. Police notified the wife, Mrs. D. M. Andrews, of 28 Marylee avenue, Mt. Oliver, and then removed the body to the county morgue.

He was found partly clothed, seated in a chair beside the table, a bullet wound in the head and a revolver clasped in his hand. A. P. Powers, another government employe and Andrews' roommate, discovered the body and notified police.

Police say they learned that Andrews and his wife were separated recently and that a few days ago he received a letter from Desertion and Non-support Court, concerning their domestic difficulties. Powers told police his friend was a quiet man and seldom spoke of his troubles.

Andrews came to Pittsburgh in August, 1925, from his home in Canyon City, Col., he obtained employment at the United States Bureau of Mines in February, 1926.

The letter was written with a red pencil on plain white paper. In it he wrote of his bewilderment in being unable to find happiness, his shattered dreams and his inability to cope with life. The letter was without a heading but had been placed in an envelope addressed to Mrs. Andrews.

Wales Flies Over Jungle To Study Big Game

NAIROBI, Africa, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—In addition to stalking game on foot, the Prince of Wales has had a fine aerial view of specimens of big game roaming about in their wild state on the great Athi plain near here.

The chance came when the prince paid a visit to the Nairobi airdrome, situated on the edge of a big-game reserve where wild creatures, including lions, wildbeeste, gazelles and ostriches, may be seen wandering right up to its boundaries.

At the invitation of Pilot Campbell Black, the prince made a short flight over the region, the pilot taking it over the plain where the prince could see the animals in their native haunts.

The machine then flew over Nairobi, of which the prince got a fine view.

The prince was robbed by bad luck of a chance to shoot at a big bull elephant after traveling nearly 100 miles on foot in search of him and finally getting within 40 yards of the animal.

The Prince's misfortune was revealed by Capt. D. G. Finch-Hatton, famous hunter who accompanied the Prince's party on an expedition into the African jungles. He said the elephant got scent of the porters just as Wales was preparing to shoot, and quickly crashed away through the jungle and got out of range.

James, with his brother, Arch James, had left home and traveled a short distance when the truck struck the horse ridden by Benge. The truck overturned and was demolished, although neither of the boys was injured. The two boys assisted Benge, who assured them he was not injured. Then John James asked his brother to go after their father, John James, Sr., of Redhouse, near here.

When Arch and his father returned, they found the body of John, Jr., in the road beside the truck, a bullet through his heart. A gun was nearby. Authorities said the boy apparently committed suicide, although they planned an investigation.

Safe Deposit Box Holding Will and Cash Hunted

HONOLULU, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Lost: A safe deposit box containing a will and a fortune.

Samuel R. Stern, Seattle attorney, was looking for it here. Mrs. Wilhelmina Campbell Darr Denne, former resident of Honolulu, left a note at her death saying the box contained between $20,000 and $30,000 in bonds and her will. She neglected to give the location of the box.

Friends remembered that Mrs. Denne had an account with a Honolulu bank. Hence the search.

ILEANA'S FIANCE SPURNS CRITICS

NICE, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Count von Hochberg, whose engagement to Princess Ileana, of Rumania, has been under fire in Rumanian circles, has declined to comment on the criticism. He is staying with his mother, Princess von Pless, at the Villa Lanapoul.

The Count's friends refused to believed the engagement has been broken. They pointed out, however, that it would require several months of negotiation to arrange religious affairs connected with the marriage. Count von Hochberg being a Roman Catholic and refusing to give up his faith.

The Rumanian Government recently began investigating the antecedents of Count von Hochberg, fiance of Princess Ileana. Premier Julio Maniu told newspaper correspondents that if anything was found reflecting dishonor upon the Count the Government would advise against maintenance of the engagement. Princess Ileana and Queen Marie left home last week for a 40-day trip through Palestine and Egypt.

Shotgun Lets Go; One Man Hurt, Three Held

Herbert Burrough's demonstration of how he handled a shotgun on a hunting trip sent one Negro to the South Side Hospital and three others and himself to the South Side Police Station on suspicious person charges last night.

Burrough was demonstrating in his home at 130 Williams street, when it was discharged. The load struck Woodward Austin, 25, of 422 Dinwiddie street, in the left foot, police said. The arrest of Burrough and his three friends followed.

Boy, 10, Run Down By Motorist, Dies

BRITISH BUDGET FRAUD CHARGED

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech at Huddersfield, declared that the last national budget drawn up by the Conservative government of Prime Minister Baldwin was fraudulent.

He admitted his budget might disclose a deficiency, but blamed this largely on the state of affairs he found at the treasury when he took it over in 1929 from Winston Churchill.

"I found the till empty of cash, but full of unpaid bills," said Mr. Snowden.

He added that it would take three years to restore Britain's finances to the condition in which I left them in 1924."

Expose Reveals U. S. Dope Slaves

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—News, news, news.

All about the great international dope ring—real news—at last.

So it wasn't just "newspaper talk," this business of the dope ring after all.

It wasn't just a "newspaper story," this hideous heartbreaking story of the slaves to the living death, caught and held in the mesh of dope, not by a strange circumstance—but by a set, fixed, coolly-calculated plan.

A plan that reached around the world, from one great city to another, and from every great city out into the country towns—out, out, out, up and down the current of sluggish rivers, out to lonely farms, out to the fishing fleets in the northern waters—marijuana for the fishing fleet, heroin for the soldiers in the barracks, cocaine for the girls in the night clubs, and for the girls in the dance halls and for the girls in the theater and for the girls in the great stores—oh, yes, the cocaine ring is hunting for them, night and day. Why not?—there's money in it.

Big Profits Lure

And what is human misery, and human disgrace and human despair, when there is money in it for the dope ring?

Morphine straight for the woman with jaded nerves, the woman who goes to "parties" and must have something to make her sleep when she gets home.

Cocaine for the lawyer who feels himself slipping and wants to make a showing in court, cocaine for the student who has a difficult examination to pass and wants to whip his tired brain to a semblance of energy.

High and low, rich and poor, the net is spread for them.

Why not—with 100 tons of dope "legitimately" manufactured every year—100 tons, mind you? And three tons of morphine will take care of every legitimate need in the legitimate world of medicine today.

What becomes of those other 97 tons?

Yet the books of those perfectly respectable factories show perfectly reliable figures as to the making of that missing 97 tons—and when you are thinking about that remember what a ton of morphine means. One quarter of a grain is all that a competent physician will permit himself to give his patient at one time, and that patient must be in desperate need of help to get even that much from any honest doctor.

2,000 Doctors Hit

There are 2,000 doctors in the United States who have been already convicted of breaking the narcotic laws.

They are most of them dope addicts themselves and they have most of them helped make dope addicts by selling prescriptions—the Porter bill now before Congress will get rid of these convicts in the medical profession—and every honest self-respecting doctor will throw his influence into the scale for the Porter bill when he understands just exactly what that bill means for the honor of his profession.

Let's do a little figuring, you and I, for just a few minutes.

One quarter of a grain—how many grains are there in a ton of morphine—get some one with a head for figures to calculate that for you.

That's all you'll need.

You won't have to read the reports for the hospitals, and the prisons and the reform schools to learn about dope.

You won't have to talk with police officials or judges, or matrons in jails, or reformatories to find out about the spread of the dope evil.

You won't have to agitate yourself with emotional stories about beautiful girls drugged and dragged to ruin.

You won't have to know about the little boats that steal up and down the great rivers of our country smuggling dope to the farm hands, yes and to the sons and sometimes the daughters of decent farmers.

Dope at Any Cost

You won't have to watch the streets at night to see the wretched dope slaves creeping from corner to corner, looking for money somewhere, anywhere, getting that money by begging, by thievery, even by murder—money to buy the dope which is the only thing that will stop their hideous torment—for dope you must understand begins by soothing, and ends with torture.

Don't bother your head, don't wring your heart with any of these things.

Just learn those figures—memorize them—they're easy enough—three tons of narcotics an ample allowance for all the real medicinal use in the whole world and one hundred tons "legitimately" manufactured.

What becomes of those 97 tons?

Do the owners of the dope factories spend time and money and energy and brains to make all this deadly poison and then take a sail on a yacht and drop it overboard, pound by pound—just for fun?

And that isn't counting the new menace, marijuana, at all.

That's another story—a terrible story with a strange beginning and a fearful ending.

Let that go for another day. Just think about the 97 tons of dope "legitimately" manufactured in fine, flourishing, respectable, well-to-do factories—and try to imagine what becomes of it.

Who buys it?

Who sells it?

Who uses it—in your world and mine?

Don't be emotional about it; don't be excited.

Just do a little plain figuring—figures, you know, never lie.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. — (AP) — With bow damaged and port anchor torn away, the Ward liner Monterey turned back to Brooklyn for repairs made necessary by a collision in a dense fog with the Italian freighter Isarco, 30 miles south of Sandy Hook.

Officials of the line announced that the ship was slightly damaged eight feet above the water line and would be ready in a few days to resume her voyage to Havana. They said that none of the 45 passengers or crew was injured.

New Jensen Plane Flies Backward Upside Down

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 24. — (AP) — Martin Jensen, holder of the world's record for solo endurance flying, created a new stunt by flying backward, upside down, for about a mile.

The aviator was using the first plane turned out by his factory at Lehighton, Pa., a biplane of 100 horsepower, which he said was constructed on a principle which would keep the center of gravity stationary in the wings regardless of the position of the ship.

After putting his plane through loops and rolls, Jensen flipped it upside down and flew in this position, righting the plane, he headed it into the wind, turned it upside down again and then throttled his engine down to stalling speed — 30 miles an hour. A 40-mile wind carried him backward at about ten miles an hour.

LACK EVIDENCE IN GRAFT SUIT

District Attorney S. H. Gardner today announced there was insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution of a former city employe in connection with the city's claim of $1,250,000 for alleged overcharges against the American Reduction Company.

Gardner was in conference for more than an hour with former City Controller Henry O. Evans and Assistant District Attorney Harry I. Phillips.

The statement of the employe involved, according to Gardner, admitted he had on five occasions borrowed money from the Reduction Company, but that in each case the loan was covered by his personal note. The transactions could not be traced to show they had never been repaid, Gardner asserted.

Rich Antarctic Finds by Wilkins

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS,
Commander of the Hubert Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.
Universal Service Special Cable.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 24.—Here we are back in civilization after an extensive exploration of the Antarctic continent, the sixth continent of the world and the last part of the globe to be explored by man.

Success has crowned our months of exploration along that 2,000-mile gap of heretofore unknown coastline that forms the southern limit of the Pacific Ocean. Much of the data that we collected during our airplane flights will have to be assembled before it can be made public.

But it is not too early to state that probably two of our greatest achievements were the discovery that Charcot Land is an island and the location of about 300 miles of that gap of 2,000-mile Antarctic continent coastline.

Reach Port in Plane

Today we are resting in this hospitable capital. Yesterday, flying from beside the transport Henrik Ibsen, when she was still 40 miles from port, we rapidly approached Montevideo. We flew over the harbor, then over the fashionable suburbs, where reside our friends, the Uruguayan officials.

The members of the expedition are convinced that great things can be done with airplanes in Antarctic exploration, but for my immediate requirements in connection with my comprehensive meteorological investigations I found that other methods of transportation are necessary.

It is now a question of what to do without equipment. Our Lockheed plane, Los Angeles, which was flown yesterday, holds records which will forever remain unique. It deserves a place in an aeronautical museum, yet the contingencies of modern exploration are such that the Los Angeles must be sold to cover the expenses of my expedition.

Plane Makes Records

The records that it established when flown in the Antarctic by my much mourned companion, the late Ben Eielson, are:

1. The first plane to fly to the Antarctica.

2. The first plane from which new land was discovered and new coasts charted. It had already crossed the Arctic Ocean from Alaska to Spitzbergen.

This year, in the hands of Pilots Al Cheesman and Parker Cramer, it added many more results to its achievements. In December Charcot Land was found to be an island. During its flights two new islands were sighted and about 300 miles of what we believe to be the Antarctic continental coastline located.

Later it was carried through mountainous seas on the William Scoresby, and through heaving pack ice to the impenetrable heavy ice south of the Pacific Ocean. The Los Angeles flew through blinding snow storms, over hundreds of miles of Antarctic pack ice, discovering no new lands, but that which is equally interesting to geographers—new seas.

British Ship Aids

Our first journey from Deception Island this season lasted three weeks. We failed to locate suitable flat land, snow or ice from which we could take off with big loads to culminate, we hoped, in a non-stop flight to the Ross Sea.

We were able, through the generous assistance from the British research vessel, William Scoresby, under control of the Colonial Office in London, to extend our action by boat to almost half way to the Ross Sea. By the time the vessel was refueled, re-provisioned and still further delayed by bad weather and sidetracked to south Georgia en route to meet us, the season was almost too late to expect fine weather in high southern latitudes.

However, there was still a chance because the conditions in the Polar regions are so uncertain that it is never wise to give up hope without exhaustive trials. Two days after we left Deception Island a break in the weather came.

—It Belongs to the Feminine and Romantic Mood of Formal Fashions

While, this spring, we may dress in tailored fashion for the street, and have our simple, straight-around-and-not-too-long frocks for simple daytime functions, yet gowns which are feminine, long and clinging, come into the picture for formal occasions.

So we have chosen lace for some of the most effective afternoon gowns in our Women's Finer Dress Section . . . Dresses with the new, small-patterned laces with trailing vine or all-over flower designs, and in the more conventional Spanish effects. . . . And costumes of lace combined with net, consisting of sleeveless dresses and long-sleeved coatees.

He could create atmosphere and not resort to [illegible] he wrote a substantial score with brilliant parts for each instrument. In Tschaikowsky's work the great Russian clung to his favorite melancholy idiom. It is most logically developed music and as rich as his symphonies.

The players, Ralph Lewando, violin, Joseph Derdeyn, cello and Selmar Janssen, piano, were at their best in the last trio. This ensemble is made up of three strong individuals and their music still impresses one as if they had not yet agreed on how far each might suppress himself for the sake of the group. Their playing is clear and animated, and in movements like the Saint-Saens andante has fine dramatic feeling.

PASTORS SCORE S. H. CHURCH

Methodist ministers of Pittsburgh said a few things today about Dr. Samuel Harden Church in answer to the things he said about Methodist ministers while giving his views on prohibition before a Congressional committee last week.

One speaker at the weekly meeting said Church was "about as contemptible as they make them," and there was a chorus of Amen.

"It's an amazing thing," he continued, "that he has succeeded in creating the appearance of being somebody when as a matter of fact he is really nobody."

It was suggested that inasmuch as Church, as chairman of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, "had thousands of young people under him," it was the duty of the preachers to condemn him.

After discussion it was decided not to dignify Dr. Church's remarks by making them the subject of a resolution.

Boy Burglar Held For Killing Chum

Ashy-Pale Boys and Girls

Feeble, Anemic, Painfully Underweight—All for Lack of Two Vital Health-and-Growth Elements

That undernourished, thin-blooded condition, known as anemia, shows itself in wan cheeks, white lips, feeble, easily tired bodies, low vitality and slow growth.

If your sickly child could spend the whole year round on the beach in a bathing suit until the little body was fairly soaked with life-giving sunshine, you would have as strong and lusty a youngster as you could wish.

Internal Sunshine Aids Health

But since school attendance and climatic conditions make that impossible, do the next best thing—give your boy or girl internal sunshine every day. The old method of doing this was to force a child to take liquid cod liver oil—the richest natural source of the "sunshine" vitamin D and the equally wonderful body builder, vitamin A.

But now your child or any other sickly youngster can obtain the full benefit of cod liver oil's vitamins without actually having to take a single spoonful of disagreeable, fishy and frequently nauseating liquid cod liver oil.

Simply give the little one McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets. They are just as rich in vitamins as the finest grade cod liver oil, yet far more pleasant to take as they are tasteless, odorless and greaseless. Genuine cod liver oil extract is their only ingredient—they positively contain no harmful or habit-forming drugs, no inert medicines, no temporary "pick-me-ups."

A Pleasant Way to Get Well

Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets are equal to one teaspoonful of the pure, vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made. Amazing results follow their regular daily use.

For any sick, anemic, rundown or underweight condition for which cod liver oil is known to be beneficial, it is just as safe, just as beneficial and far more pleasant to take or give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets instead. 60 tablets, 60 cents at any drugstore.

Film Reviews Combined With Stage Notes and Hollywood Chatter

MARY PICKFORD, NOT COOLIDGE, STARTS HOLLYWOOD LAD CLIMBING LIGHTS

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by United Feature Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24.

THE honey of the Calvin Coolidge stories seeps to this bureau. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, piloted by Mary Pickford and film notables, visited the Warner lot. Also one of the sets. They were seated.

A young lad was espied climbing lights and sundry objects that interfered with his vision.

"Can't you see Mr. Coolidge, kid?" a player called.

"See who?" pausing in his efforts.

"Coolidge."

"Aw, who wants to see him? He's grimacing. I wanta get a good look at Mary Pickford!"

Mary Pickford

This department, in its aimless, resentful way, has frequently wondered why it is that producers and directors, in their search for talent to fit specific roles, will encourage players who haven't a chance to get the parts—or the part. I've seen it happen so often.

Five and more players are usually considered for the same role. Each receives his or her share of encouragement. He or she is kept dancing on a telephone wire days at a stretch. "We haven't decided yet." Or, "Call me tomorrow at ten."

It happens too often. Why doesn't the histrionic division of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences start a society for the prevention of needless mental cruelty to actors?

"The Red Heads" 20 Years After

DICK WEIL printed the following with such exquisite eclat that I rush it to press in all haste. Isabelle Keith, fresh from her Paris (Ky.) triumphs, has been engaged for a part in Warner's Viennese Nights."

Over on the Pathe lot a two-reeler is going into production, yclept "The Red Heads." It's significance bridges from yesterday to today. Some 20 years ago Jesse Lasky of Famous Players-Lasky wealth produced it. This was before he left the vaudevil field to pioneer in the picture ditto. William Le Baron, now head of RKO, wrote the story. William Woolfender in charge of Pathe two-reelers and stories staged it. Its orchestra leader was B. A. Rolfe, who has since become a popular dance and radio orchestra conductor. With such a slew of names, "The Red Heads"—even without Clara Bow as the title—should enjoy an auspicious screen launching.

Stage Star in "Let Us Be Gay"

SCREENALITIES: Violet Heming, stage star formerly ditto in pictures, is in Hollywood. Rehearsing "Let Us Be Gay," with Virginia Valli, Anderson Lawler et al. A stage play, Miss Heming has moved into the Chateau Elysee for the duration of her sojourn hereabouts. . . . Becky Gardner, W. K. scenarist and playwright, is back in town. Recently returned from a jaunt to London. . . . The John Barrymores are expecting the heir—or heiress—in April. . . . Joan Crawford, Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Carmel Myers three-soming at the Embassy for luncheon. . . . Evelyn Brent exiting from a boulvard bookstore staggering under a load of books. Naturally. . . . Jack Oakie and party tripping it in Ye Cocoanut Grove. And the orchestra hitting up Jack's favorite ditty, "Sweeter Than Sweet." Now, why is that Jack's favorite? . . . Sidney Blackmer recalling, apropos of what I forget, the amusing criticism Tallulah Bankhead sprang at a premier in New York. "There's less to this than meets the eye!" The same line holds for most screen musical comedies. . . . Charlie Chaplin has cut and assembled six reels of his forthcoming silent comedy. Hear tell two more reels will be taken. But Chaplin is in no particular rush. . . . Mary Astor decided to make pancakes 'tother morn. The recipe said a few spoonfuls of pancake flour. But Mary distrusted the instructions. She mixed two cupfuls! And vowed she had enough batter to feed an army! . . . June Clyde arriving on the "Radio Revels" set 15 minutes late. Director Paul Sloan fixing her with a cold, deadly eye. "Good morning," bubbled June. "Have a Lifesaver?" "No," growled Paul. "Have a stick of chewing gum?" June came prepared. "No." But Paul's second "no" was weaker. "Have a bit of candy?" undaunted. Paul sighed. "I suppose I might as well!"

Joan Crawford.

DEAD, LIVING IN ETERNAL TRIANGLE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The eternal triangle looms in strange form out on the Sheridan Square screen in a picture titled "Second Wife." Again it is two women at odds for the possession of one man—only this time one of them is a dead woman.

The film, a talkie, is based on Fulton Oursler's play, "All The King's Men," which, in turn, is based on his novel, "Step-Child of the Moon." It presents the story of a young New York widower with a small son, who marries again and finds the memory of his first wife threatening to wreck the romance with his second.

As its dramatic climax, it puts this man in the difficult position of choosing between a son about to be born and another son, in faraway Switzerland, about to die. And he chooses to go to the sick lad, does this man—leaving his young second wife to face the greatest ordeal in any woman's life alone.

JEALOUS OF THE DEAD

There are in reality two triangle complexes—the other being that of two men's love for the same woman. But this latter is all secondary to the main issue: a second wife's jealousy of her husband's first mate.

All of the action takes place in interior settings—in the home of a widower, in the home of a bridegroom and in the home of a married man. All of whom are the same person.

The production is adult entertainment for discriminating audiences. It is forceful in its dramatics and its theme—a theme that is bravely different from the usual merry-go-round of movie heroics and romance.

EVER-PRESENT SPECTER

Capable players give the story sympathetic treatment. Of these, Conrad Nagel, as the husband, and Lila Lee, as the second wife, are most prominent. Then there are others—Mary Carr, as housekeeper; Hugh Huntley, as the other man, and Freddie Burke Frederick, as the young son. And another character is prominent too—the dead wife.

With uncanny skill her "presence" is made felt throughout the picture. Even in the closing sequence, when happiness again comes to the husband and his second wife, it seems that the first wife is still there. And if you're imaginative enough, perhaps you see her in the shadows. And is that a smile on her spectral lips?

NEWSPAPERMAN STUFF

THEY still are laughing about it over in the New York Times editorial rooms. On Lincoln's Day one of the rag's Long Island correspondents interviewed the local Civil War veterans and covered the village celebrations. Then he wound up his telegraphic report with: "The high spot of the day was Capt. Tomkins' elocution at the Town Hall. He rendered Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, which was as follows: 'The chump then jotted down the entire Gettysburg Address.

The busy Times editor watching the Gettysburg speech come over the wire, became slightly ill, but not ill enough to prevent him from wiring the correspondent:

"On Washington's Birthday for God's sake don't send us Washington's speech at Valley Forge. We've GOT it!"

ADD SIMILES

John Fitzgerald's: "As optimistic as a dramatic critic who signs his name at the bottom of his reviews."

MERCILESS TRUTH

EVERY time we pass a certain corner on the Canyon, where former headliners now collect and groan about things, we think of the classic pulled by Patty Arbuckle, who, while sitting in a Hollywood restaurant had a drink of gin offered to him.

"What's that?" queried Patty.

"Gin!" ejaculated the other.

"Gin?" asked Arbuckle.

"Yeah, gin," was the reply. "You know—the stuff you and I were buying 15 years ago when people we called 'dumbells' were buying real estate!"

SQUELCH

OVERHEARD at Forty-fourth street: "He's the sort of guy who has to drink at least ten cups of coffee to keep awake while talking about himself."

PUN MY SOUL!

And Frank Callahan, the bellhop, wonders if you've heard the new acrobatic song: "My feet Is in Your Hands."

PORTRAIT OF A COLUMNIST

THE "Broadway Columnist" has served numerous novelists, playwrights and short-story scriveners in the past year. At last seven novels employed the Broadway Columnist as a leading or minor character, but in the exaggerated manner. It remained for Joseph Hilton Smyth, however, to be the first author to "catch" the type, and in his "Back to Broadway" short story in the current (Feb. 22) Saturday Evening Post, Smyth artfully jots down a perfect picture of a Broadway paragrapher who tries to "get away from it all."

And Smyth's accuracy is deadly. He makes his outstanding character (the columnist) mouth such banalities as: "We all make mistakes. That's why Reno is so crowded."

The columnist's name is Wally Weber.

INCIDENTALLY

One wonders whatever became of the play Barry McCollum threatened to write and which was to deal with columnists. At the time Mr. McCollum announced that the first scene would be laid in the dining room of the Algonquin and the final scenes in a cemetery.

The "Algonquin Legend" still persists and it reveals how little any writer knows when he hammers away at the "Algonquin bunch." The only Algonquin writers are those who call themselves "free-lance writers," which is ritz for meaning out of work.

JUST FOR THE RECORDS

A CONTEMPORARY rag breathlessly reports the discovery of "Jeff Davis," ex-but rich husband of Ruth St. Clair, the shoplifter, whose life sentence under the Baumes law has aroused press, pulpit and public. The newspaper hastens to report that "Mr. Davis," as it prefers to call him, has promised to help his former wife with coin, and would have come forward sooner but for fear of losing his esteemed post with a mighty organization and his position in society.

Well, if we were going to shield Mr. Davis, we wouldn't have printed his photograph, but we don't see how it can do Jeff any harm. And, anyway, he isn't rich, nor is his job an esteemed one. And he isn't in society. In fact, he is the chief usher of a 47th street theater.

IN CASE YOU HADN'T HEARD

There is a persistent rumor to the effect that all the He-Men in show business are going to get together and form a two-act.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

CANTOR TALE IN MAKING AS FILM

E. B. Hatrick, executive head of all the film activities of William Randolph Hearst, announces that three Cosmopolitan productions are now in the making or in preparation in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The first to be released probably will be a comedy, "Caught Short," based on the book by Eddie Cantor and written by Willard Mack. The story originally bore the title of "Margin Mugs." It has to do with the recent stock market flurry. The cast includes Marie Dressler, Polly Moran, Charles Morton, Anita Page and T. Roy Barnes.

Another Cosmopolitan production in the making is a prison story, "The Big House," which is said to be most remarkably thrilling and gripping. The picture will have a notable cast, headed by Wallace Beery in the role of a life convict. Karl Dane also will be seen.

Another Cosmopolitan picture, "Five and Ten," will be made from the story by Fannie Hurst which ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine last year.

In addition to these three important pictures of Cosmopolitan brand, Marion Davies is at work in a big musical production, "In the Gay Nineties." The story is woven about a beautiful Gibson girl. Miss Davies is surrounded by a bevy of other beautiful girls among them Lenore Bushman, daughter of Francis X. Bushman, Patricia Caron, Vivian Oakland, Ilka Chase and Gladys Sykes. Big floppy hats, rakish pompadours and waspish waists were in vogue in the gay '90's.

RICHARD DIX, GRAFF IN HARRIS

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," talking screen version of George M. Cohan's old stage success, is the feature on the Harris screen. Richard Dix is starred.

This Baldpate is a deserted inn where a young author goes to write a book, believing he has the only key to the place. But he soon finds he's mistaken. Queer characters make their appearance at the inn and mystery and adventure fall over each other. Comedy crops out in abundance, too, and the fadeout brings the happy ending, with the young author having written his book and found a sweetheart for himself. The cast includes Margaret Livingston, Miriam Seegar, Joseph Allen and Carleton Macy.

Victor Graff presents "Sidewalks of New York" on the stage. Mr. Graff is much in evidence and wins quite a hand when he sings about "ships that never come in" and recites about life being like a poker game. There is a Bowery atmosphere to the show, with the band members being garbed in sweaters and caps and the dancing girls in comic and short skirts. Featured entertainers include a tramp comedian who burlesques popular songs of the day, and a fellow and girl, who hand out chatter and clown antics. Screen shorts and a Johnny Mitchell organlogue are on the bill.

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison uxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

Lovejoy's Party Arrives In 'Divorce' Town

CHAPTER XLI.

STEVE had taken a drawing room on the Pullman for her. It was filled with flowers and there was a stack of the new magazines on one of the seats when Lovejoy stepped into it that night.

Sheila Nettles came with her as far as the door.

"Steve has Room A in the next car," she said, "and I have B. We'll come back here for you as soon as the train starts and we'll all have dinner together."

Then she was gone, leaving a cloud of double-jasmine perfume in the air of the narrow corridor.

Lovejoy stood in the middle of the tiny green-plush room looking at the mirrors and the wash-bowl and the stack of new magazines.

All at once she was frightened. Why was she here on this train without the baby? The baby was the most precious thing in the world and she couldn't leave him!—Why she had been insane to think that she could start off like this without him!

The train gave a jerk. It seemed to shake itself all over the way a dog does when it comes out of the water. The station lights began to slide past the windows of the drawing room.

"We're on our way," Lovejoy said to herself. She sank down on the long seat just inside the door and began to cry.

Presently she heard the slamming of a heavy steel door, the sound of voices in the corridor and then a knocking on her own door.

That's Steve, she thought.

"Just a second, Steve!" she called out and began to dash cold water on her tear-stained face.

When she opened the door to him two minutes later she was carefully rouged and powdered once more.

"You've been crying," he said. "Sheila told me you looked as if you were feeling blue so I came right back to get you. We're going to have dinner in her room."

Gives Lovejoy Money

He stepped into the drawing room, closed the door behind him and took her in his arms. He kissed her long and ardently.

"If you only knew how I've worried about getting you on this train!" he said to her when he let her go at last. "If you only knew how I've held my breath—I've been afraid that you'd back out at the last minute!"

"I did, too!" Lovejoy assured him. "But it was too late. The train had started!"

Tears sprang into her eyes again. But she blinked them away and ran a powder puff across her reddened lids.

"Let's go and find Sheila!" she said briskly. "I don't want to start crying again! I want to go through this thing with a stiff upper lip."

"Just a minute!" He stopped her as she was opening the door. "Here is something for you!—You'll need some money for tips and things on this train."

He took a small gold mesh-bag from his coat pocket. It was filled with folded bills and silver. Its clasp was a big, flat sapphire.

"It's lovely," Lovejoy faltered. But she hated to take it from him, all the same. . . . She knew that he was going to put a big sum of money into a Nevada bank for her. But this was different, somehow.

"I hate to take money from you, though, Steve," she said quietly. "It makes me feel like a wife taking money from her husband—"

"That's fine!" Steve laughed. "If you'll just keep on feeling that I'm your husband everything will be perfect."

They went into the next car, laughing and talking with great cheerfulness.

Thinks of Tom

The porter had set up a table in Sheila's room. On it were glasses and cracked ice and a big leather case full of bottles.

"I thought we'd have a cocktail or two before dinner," Steve said. "You were right, Sheila, about Lovejoy. I found her crying her eyes out."

"I know just how you feel, Lovely," Sheila answered with a laugh. "I cried all the way to Nevada when I went there for my divorce. But I laughed all the way back, and I've been laughing ever since."

She surely did not look as if she ever had had a moment's unhappiness. Her big eyes sparkled with laughter and the corners of her lips had an upward tilt.

The cocktail made Lovejoy feel much lighter of heart. It was made of cream and cracked ice and some kind of brown liquor from one of the bottles in Steve's pigskin case.

"It's an 'Alexander,'" said Sheila, tucking a lace face-pillow under her cheek. "I like them best of all the cocktails. They're so easy to take and they make you feel so nice and woozy."

She was dreamy-eyed and flushed by the time the waiter came with the dinner.

"I'm going to let you two have dinner by yourselves," she told them, "and I'm going up into the diner for mine. I think I saw Joe Rossiter getting on this train. Anyway, he was in the station—"

She made vague passes at her nose with a powder puff, smoothed down her bright, close-cropped hair and left them.

If she doesn't find Joe Rossiter, she'll find somebody else that she knows," Steve remarked comfortably when both she and the waiter were gone. "She won't bother us much."

Lovejoy watched him serve the cream of mushroom soup that he had ordered. It was Tom's favorite soup, and Norrie had made it once a week during the time she lived with them.

They were probably having dinner together in Norrie's flat right now. They'd be having baked beans. . . . Norrie said all nice folksy people had baked beans on Saturday night.

A New Friend

The next morning she slept late. That was the cocktails. They always made her sleep for hours and hours on end.

The women's lounge and the shower bath were next door to her room. At 11 o'clock she took a shower and washed her hair. Her scalp was full of soot already.

While she was rubbing her head dry the door of the lounge opened and a woman in Chinese trousers and coat came swaggering in.

In five minutes she had made friends with Lovejoy and was telling her her life's story.

"You'd just die laughing if you knew what I'm doing," she told her. "Five years ago I went out to Reno over this very road to divorce my husband and marry his best friend. Of course, I mean a man who had been his best friend!—Well, anyway, I'm on my way to Reno now to divorce Number Two so that I can remarry Number One. Can you beat that?"

Lovejoy gravely said that she could not.

"Oh, you can make terrible mistakes in this world, honey!" the little doll-face sighed. "You can get terrible cases on men that aren't worthy of a woman's love!"

Lovejoy nodded her damp head.

Reach Destination

That was what I had on Tom—a "case," she decided on her way back to her own room. If he hadn't talked me into marrying him I'd probably have married Steve in the first place.

I could forget it all—and him, too, she thought as she powdered her face and neck and arms, if it weren't for the baby.

. . . . . .

The trip to Nevada stuck in her mind always as one long bridge party.

At one or two o'clock they would have lunch. Then they would settle down to cards and drinks and cigarets for the rest of the afternoon.

Outside the windows the great mountains would wheel into view, red and gold and purple in the clear air of the west. A lone horseman would come riding out of some cut in the foothills, looking for all the world like a cover on an outdoor magazine. Now and then a couple of Indian women in pink or yellow calico dresses would come into sight, picking their way through the sage brush near the tracks.

"Sometimes I think that women like that are the only happy women," Sheila said once when one of them appeared, trudging along with a baby in a blanket that was slung across her wide shoulders.

"You think that because you have never been poor," Lovejoy answered her sharply. "But I have been—and it's terrible. You have to work like a horse all the time. You never even sit down to a meal without thinking of the dirty dishes that you'll have to wash later on."

On a cold, clear night, just after sunset, the lights of Minden came into view. Minden—the town that was to set her free from Tom and jealousy and worry over money!

THE ALL-AROUND ATHLETE

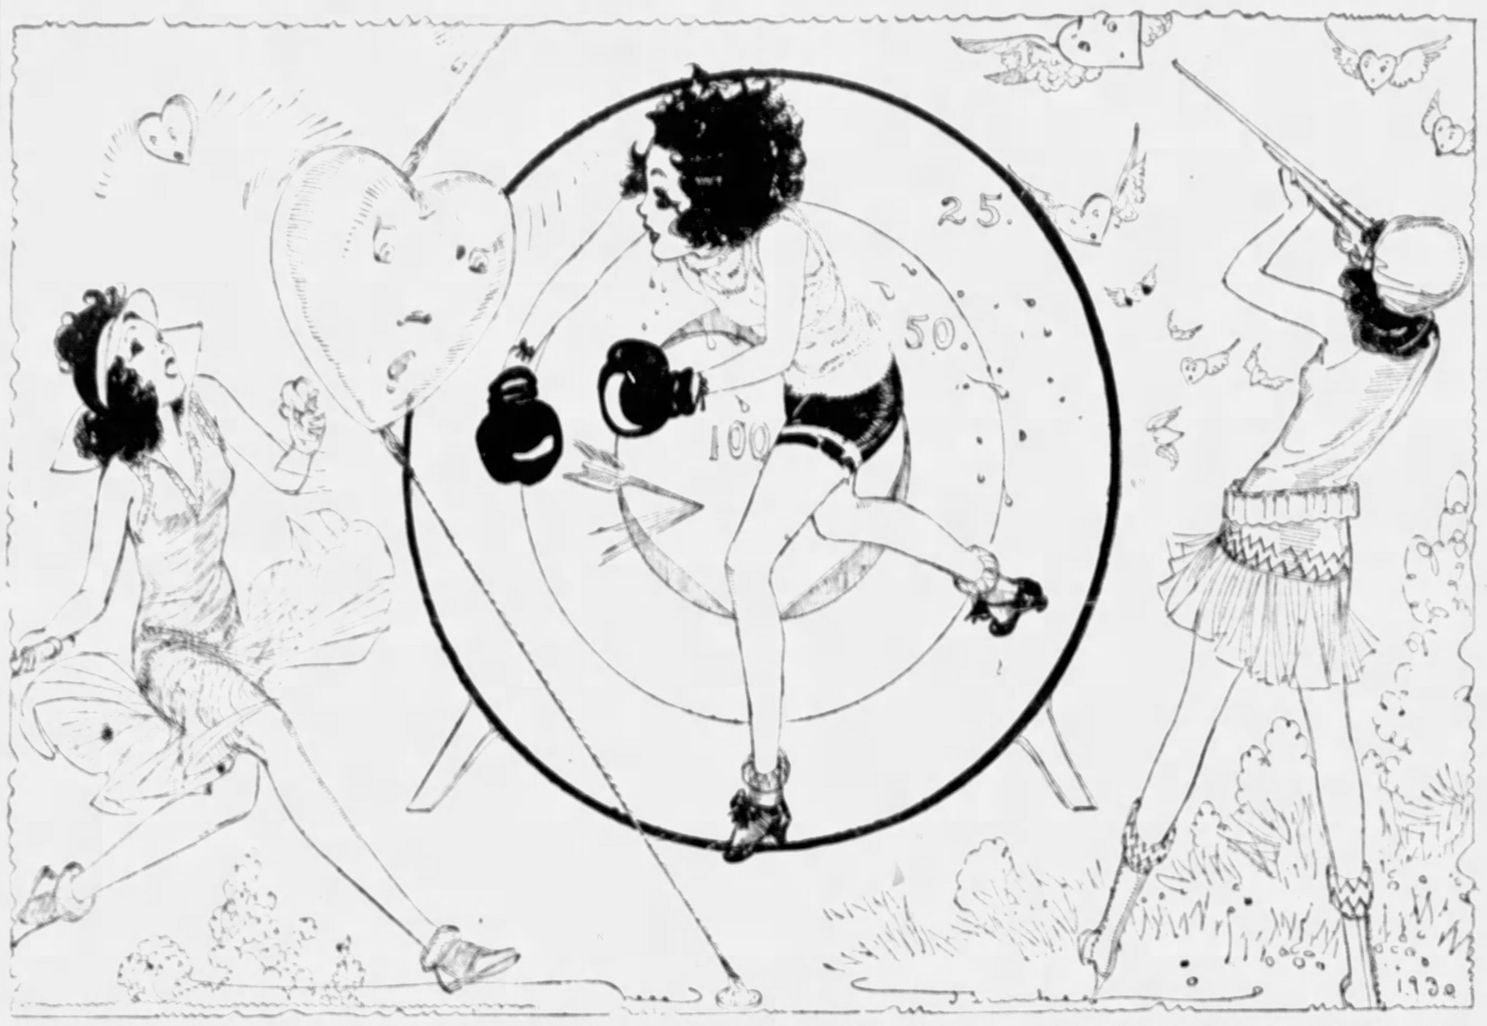
Drawn by Nell Brinkley



"ONE HUNDRED per cent, many sided, cool-headed, all-round heartbreaker my girl is," boasted Dan incorp. "Silver cups, like a Queen's sideboard. Blue ribbons like a Yale Bowl in a breeze. Gold medals like the bottom of a pirate's chest. She can shoot 'em down with both eyes shut. She never misses one over the net. She puts her arrows so check by jowl right in the one-hundred center of the red heart that they jostle one another like six officers in a P. D. roadster front seat. And you know what that looks like! And she can make biggest catch in hearts patter like the rain on a tin roof with the gloves over her little paws. From the humbliest to the most eligible. My girl gets them all. My modern girl, in shorts, in rolled socks, in eye-shade.

"But—now—did you ever see her in snaky black satin and pearls, ear-rings and a faint rumor of rouge. She's even better then, though the ensemble is anything but ATHLETIC!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel's Secret Only Complicates Delicate Situation

At Lillian's quiet declaration that she thought she knew why Noel insisted upon evening dress for his trip to the talkie with Mary, her husband arose, folded his arms and looked down at her with burlesqued pomposity.

"Woman!" he thundered. "Since when have you started thinking without asking my permission first? But as long as you've already broken training, let us in on the extra ice cream, pronto."

But Lillian's answering grin was only a perfunctory one, as she rose abruptly.

"Come into our apartment, all of you," she said, "and I'll show you what I mean."

We followed her into the Underwood suite and she opened the door of the room which Lillian had planned for Marion's vacations, but which she had given up to Noel when his father's anger had left him with an income pitifully inadequate for his needs. Lillian had removed the feminine furnishings to her own larger room and kept them in readiness for Marion, the while she had fitted up the smaller one with draperies and accessories suitable for a man.

"This looks a bit like Katie's 'snooping,'" she said apologetically, "but it's a necessity, and I think we've all proved our friendship for the boy enough to justify us in looking after him."

Her tone was so decided that Harry and Dicky checked the masculine objections to our intrusion upon the boy's privacy which were upon their lips. I carefully smothered my own distaste, for I knew that if Lillian had brought her own fastidious scruples to countenance her action, it was, as she had just said, a necessity, and it would be an impertinence to question her action.

The room was in perfect order, although Noel had changed his clothing there. Lillian voiced the thought which I think was in all our minds as she crossed the room and threw open the commodious old-fashioned closet.

"Noel certainly isn't the temperamental artiste as far as disorder is concerned. Let us hope he'll be able to bring Mary into line."

"He never will," I said with the conviction born of hopeless efforts to teach Mary orderliness. "But—Lillian—what does this mean?"

We were gazing at a closet, one half of which held but three suits, one Tuxedo and two business suits. A shabby bathrobe, a worn lounging robe and a sweater completed the list of clothing upon the hangers. The other end of the closet was shut off by a thick curtain tied by tapes to hooks placed vertically on either wall.

For answer, Lillian rapidly undid the tapes and pushed the curtain aside. Behind it were a number of moth-proof paper bags evidently filled to their utmost capacity.

"It means," she said, "that these bags contain every article of clothing bought with his father's money. The suit he has on tonight and this one here"—she indicated the evening clothes—"are salvage from the days when he earned a modest but adequate income in that cabaret. These two business suits were bought during that time also, but they have had more wear than the moonlights. Look here!"

She had closed the curtain again and fastened it, and she now took one of the business suits and held the sleeve out for our inspection. Across the elbow was a frayed area in which there was a perceptible hole.

"That happened only this evening, on our way up from dinner," she said, looking at the sleeve with the maternal sympathy most older women feel for a likable boy's neglected clothing. "And this is the better suit of the two. I have noticed that Noel has changed to it every evening before dinner. And now this has happened! Poor lad! No wonder he insisted upon the evening suit."

"He has worn them whenever possible since we have been in here," I said with sudden subconscious memories lifting themselves into the light.

"Yes, to save the others as much as he could," Lillian explained.

Harry waved an eloquent hand toward the curtain.

"And behind there is as fine and complete a wardrobe as any young man not a lounge lizard could want," he said. "I happen to know that old Phil sent the lad to his own tailor with instructions to fit him out completely regardless of expense, and the man followed orders meticulously."

"A couple of thousand easily behind there," Dicky said. "Well! you've got to slip it to the lad. His father will have none of him, has thrown him out on his ear, and what's worse to the boy, has canned his sweetheart. He doesn't know where his dad is or he'd doubtless send back the wardrobe, so he's doing the next best thing, keeping it in storage. He'd probably starve before he'd wear the things or sell them."

"Of course he would," I echoed. "But—now that we've found out about it, what are we going to do about it?"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Messy Performance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell us if it is good form to eat chicken with the fingers? I know you have answered this question often in your column, but as I did not clip the answer, I have no way of proving to a friend which is correct. F. P.

NO. When we eat chicken, we should, if we wish to have even the slightest claim to good manners—use our knife and fork. Never our fingers—at least when we are with anyone. For it isn't a pleasant experience to watch a person eat chicken in his or her fingers. It's a messy performance, and it just can't be made anything else but messy. And messiness isn't polite or attractive!

Formal Regrets

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Mr. Jones, a widower of six months, receives an invitation to a formal dance, addressed to Mr. and Mrs. J. Jones. How should he send his regrets? READER.

THE form would be:

Mr. Jonathan Thorp Jones
Regrets that he is unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Allen's
Kind invitation to a dance
Tuesday, the first of March.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER XIX.

FORBES was still gravely troubled, and he bore the marks of a sleepless night when he came down to the living room next morning. He was pacing up and down the room, trying vainly to plan out a course of action, when Blair Patterson came into the room.

"Oh, it's Mr. Patterson."

Obviously here was a man for whom he had unbounded respect. It pricked his vanity a little when Patterson didn't remember him. And when he didn't seem in the least impressed to know that he was C. Roger Forbes, who had met him at a bank directors' meeting.

"The Van Dyke interests seem to keep you quite busy," he mentioned finally, breaking an awkward pause.

Patterson seemed unwilling to talk. He just bowed his head slightly in agreement, and Forbes grew suspicious, his mind racing ahead with ideas of business enemies plotting to ruin him.

"Must be something pretty important for Van Dyke to send for you to come down here at this hour," Forbes went on, determined to know the worst. He was convinced now that Patterson had come down to draw up the partnership papers between Van Dyke and Gordon. Until this moment Forbes had not admitted, even to himself, how much he had counted on taking the young man into business with him.

Forbes saw a faint chance of forestalling their business deal when Van Dyke strolled casually into the room. But Patterson hurried him away mysteriously. He wouldn't even let Forbes talk to him and Van Dyke seemed strangely under his lawyer's influence.

Forbes resumed his pacing up and down the room; he fairly stamped with rage now as he realized that the deal was all set against him. And it made him no happier when he glanced in the garden and saw Dulcy and Gordon talking earnestly together.

Future Ruined

If he had paused to study them more closely, he would have known that something was wrong. Dulcy was not talking. She was just sitting, with head bowed, listening to Gordon.

"Dulcy, do you realize what has happened?" he was saying broken-heartedly. "Our future depended entirely on Mr. Forbes. He will probably force me out of business, and I will have to start all over again without—"

"Without me?" Dulcy asked tremulously, as he hesitated.

Gordon didn't answer. He was too crushed to speak, even to think.

"Oh Gordie," Dulcy went on, fighting back her tears, "I guess I do things without thinking. I don't blame you, Gordon. I'll always love you. I guess I'm just all wrong and you'll be better off without me."

She got up slowly and started toward the house, but paused to make the supreme sacrifice.

"I'll release you from your engagement."

Gordon took on startled look at her, and at sight of her lovely tear-stained face, framed in an aureole of golden hair, he weakened.

"Dulcy—I can't let you go."

"Oh, yes, you must," Dulcy insisted gravely. "And furthermore, I'll do everything in my power to repair the damage I have done."

Van Dyke Leaves

Gordon, brought back to his senses by the mere suggestion that Dulcy would ever try to help him again, was frightened.

"O no! Promise you won't do that!"

"Yes." Dulcy was determined. "I must go to Mr. Forbes right now and tell him how sorry I am and see if there isn't some way I can patch it up."

Gordon hurried after her as she ran toward the house, but he was delayed for a moment when Van Dyke stopped him in the hall. Van Dyke was affable as usual, completely unaware, apparently, of the havoc he had wrought. Gordon was relieved when Patterson led him away, mentioning a million-dollar deal that demanded his immediate attention.

When he reached the living room he was just in time to hear Dulcy holding forth to Forbes. Her voice was timid, wavery. And even while he longed to strangle her, he wanted to rush in and protect her.

"And it turns out that Van Dyke—" she was saying, as she caught a glimpse of Gordon cautioning her to be still.

Dulcy Tells Forbes

Forbes looked around suspiciously, and catching sight of Gordon nodded, as though he understood all.

"Miss Parker was just telling me something very important. Something about Mr. Van Dyke," he announced, as though daring Gordon to interfere.

"Oh, was she?" Gordon sparred for time, wondering how on earth he could get to Dulcy and make her stop talking to Forbes. There was no need of telling Forbes now, and humiliating him before the very man who was eager to crush him.

"Oh!" Dulcy gasped nervously. "Was I saying something about Mr. Van Dyke?"

Forbes gritted his teeth.

"Either I'm crazy or you're crazy," he ejaculated finally.

"That's just it," Dulcy announced brightly. "You see Mr. Van Dyke isn't just right up here." She tapped her head significantly. "He isn't really Schuyler Van Dyke at all," she added as Forbes' bewilderment grew.

Forbes didn't react at all as she thought he would.

"That makes everything all right, then, doesn't it?" she asked hopefully.

Forbes stared at her a moment in silence. Then wheeling about, he turned angrily to Gordon.

"That's very interesting about Mr. Van Dyke," he said coldly. "But it won't work. You must think I'm a fool to think you can put over any such story on me. I'll admit that Miss Parker is a very clever woman," he went on, and Gordon stole a frantic glance at Dulcy who beamed at the unexpected tribute, "but you can't put any such story over on me. Van Dyke, not Van Dyke. Hah!"

His was a hollow, mocking laugh.

"I wouldn't have believed it in any case," he went on, "and it just happens that I know Blair Patterson, and I know that he represents the Van Dyke interests. How are you going to explain his being down here? An important man like Patterson doesn't pop up to talk business with a crazy man."

Forbes snorted with indignation that they should try to put any such story over on him.

Gordon didn't know just what to do, and it was a relief to him to see that even Dulcy was speechless.

"I see it all," Forbes went on. "You began to be sorry you had told me about the Van Dyke merger, and now you are trying to throw me off the trail. Well, you can't do it. I'm just going to remind you that you had practically closed with me, and I am going to hold you to your agreement."

"Agreement?" Gordon was stunned.

"I'll draw up the papers right now, and if you don't sign them and come in with me as you promised—"

There was a sound of grinding brakes outside, and of a car coming to a sudden halt. An interruption at a time like this was unbearable.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

DR. COPELAND

IT has been estimated that the total time spent by pedestrians waiting to cross Fifth avenue and Forty-second street in New York City, totals a hundred thousand days in a year. Well, that is a very busy corner. Those pedestrians were all going somewhere, just where does not matter.

The point to the story is that they were walking. Perhaps few of them stopped to consider that this was good for them. But that is the fact. Even if they had to wait at the crossing, the fresh air, too, was helpful.

Walking is the first and best exercise a person can possibly take. Perhaps it does depend somewhat on temperment. Some persons prefer to have play and exercise at the same time, as in golf, or tennis, or other forms of exercise. But for the person who really wants exercise to keep him fit, walking fills every need, and it doesn't cost a cent!

Walking can be made a very pleasant pastime, added to its health benefits. A good companion, or an unfamiliar route once in a while, adds much to the pleasure of it.

An everyday walk might be taken through the park, or it may be over some other path, through an equally beautiful parkway, rather than over your ordinary route.

If you have learned to enjoy walking, the thought that the week-end may take you away to a walk in the country is enough to keep you going all the week through, even if you are a busy person. And if you are busy, you are in need of a change, at least once a week. Not all of us can belong to a country club, to be sure, but we can walk!

Persons of sedentary occupations are in particular need of daily exercise. The walk will supply it.

Now, a walk may be of two kinds. It may be energetic and purposeful, or it may be an aimless and listless sort of thing. It may be interesting or uninteresting, it may be short or long. You can make it what you wish.

If you are out for a walk on a crisp, cold day, you start off with a briskness and decisiveness of purpose that soon sets your blood to tingling. With your shoulders back and your head up, not tense, but slightly relaxed, as you swing along in an even gait, your troubles are soon behind you. Your nerves are mightily stimulated and fed by the pure oxygen from the fresh air.

Our emotions react to worry, fear and anger. The emotions have their positive effects on the blood vessels. Walking stimulates the blood vessels and the whole organism.

Unused muscles and soft flesh harden under continued exercise in walking. The heart muscle strengthen as you gradually increase the walking distance. The frailties of the body disappear under this treatment.

Of course, it is well to use discretion in walking. The frail person will not do well to walk the same distance that the vigorous, strong friend may.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Why Men Leave Home.

SOME men love money; some men love women; some love horses and some love golf. But ALL MEN LOVE COMFORT!

A woman's most dangerous rival is not always another woman. In these days, it is much more likely to be a de luxe bachelor apartment, with maid service, a valet and a cocktail-kitchen.

Once, a man had to marry in order to be comfortable. The stray bachelor was a pitiable object, who dwelt in bleak, musty "quarters" or in a dingy, cabbage-haunted boarding-house. But, NOW, with de luxe bachelor apartments springing up on every corner, NO man has to marry, and a few men want to.

One New York bachelor has equipped his pent-house apartment so completely and ingeniously, that not even the tender heart of marrying-girl could pity him. He can lie right in his little beddy-bye and, by merely lifting his lily-hand, reach anything his heart may desire, from his radio to the books on his library shelves or the button that starts his shower.

* * *

Such a luxurious apartment is a menace to matrimony. And, when you glance around at some of the strange and depressing places that some women call "homes," you understand WHY.

It's this "period" craze and this "antique" fad and this "modernistic" madness that have caused most of the increased travel to Reno. Man is a creature of habit; and for years he has been accustomed to nice, billowy overstuffed chairs, where he can stretch his full six feet of weariness, fling his head back, put his feet on something and RELAX.

* * *

But all that is no more, now that "home" has become merely something to LOOK at. A furniture show-shop!

Modernistic furniture should be listed with "mental cruelty" among the valid grounds for divorce. Any man who has to look at and live with these cubist atrocities, garish inverted lights, steely walls, harsh, uncompromising, curveless hospital effects and other inventions of a deranged imagination, has small reason to WANT to live!

Almost as bad is the "period" home. A place filled with hard straight-back, non-sitable Italian chairs, or foolish spindly Colonial chairs; shaky tables too precious for a man to dare set a glass on; a desk with no elbow-room for writing—and everything in the last stages of decay. Can you blame a man for rushing out of this "home," to some woman who has a nice, roomy stuffed divan?

Few men leave home for another woman. When a man leaves home, it is usually in order to go to some place that seems more LIKE home than "home" does. A man, like the family cat, instictively goes where he is made most COMFORTABLE!

Infant Mortality Rate Lowest In Oregon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Oregon led the United States in 1928—the last year for which figures have been compiled—as the safest state for babies, with a rate of 47 deaths to 1,000 live births.

An analysis of infant mortality statistics by the children's bureau of the Department of Labor showed that 10 states and the District of Columbia achieved a lower death rate in 1928 than in any year since admission to the birth registration area. Washington ran Oregon close second with a rate of 48 deaths.

CATHOLICS TOLD OF LABOR EVILS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

PERIODICALLY since we wrote a piece a few weeks ago about the charities of a wealthy Pittsburgh woman we have been receiving letters asking for her address. We don't know it; we don't know her name. If there are others planning to get in touch with her through us, this information, or lack of information, should save them the trouble.

All of the inquirers have been women and we pay them a gracious compliment by reporting that some of them were acting not for themselves.

There is a situation in Point Breeze which demands the attion of Booth Tarkington, the literary papa of Penrod. It is the Bicycle, not the taxicab, Strike, and the strikers are very young members of well-to-do families in that excellent residential section. Inspired by the doings attending the taxi strike, the 6-to-10-year-olds of the neighborhood have declared war against bicycle riders. And woe be to him who would ride a bicycle along the streets of Point Breeze. Sudden upsets, seizures, strong, if adolescent, adjectives, have been directed at those who would break this bicycle strike.

Mr. John Gloninger, one of the respected residenters of Point Breeze, has admitted the existence of the strike to one of this department's spies. In fact, Mr. Gloninger refused to deny rumors that one, if not two, of the younger Gloningers were among the strikers.

We are confidently awaiting the following statement from the leader of the Bicycle Strike: "We refuse to return to the bicycles until all the spokes in our wheels have been fixed and the handlebars lowered like a racer's and the crossebars fixed so we can ride two on a bike. And we're not going to quit striking, neither, until we're allowed to ride with only one hand on the handlebars, by golly."

ONE of the speakers at a banquet attended by several councilmen announced that a street had been renamed for Mike Muldowney, the new bachelor-councilman.

"Is it a paved street?" Mike, beaming, asked.

"I'm sorry to say it isn't; in fact, it's in pretty poor shape."

And Councilman John Herron, the erstwhile bricklayer, suggested they drop the L out of the new name.

It happened 12 years ago at Forbes Field. Pitt and Georgia Tech were deciding which was the better football team. During a scrimmage "Red" Barron, Southern halfback, clipped "Katy" Easterday, Pitt star, who is now coaching at Kit-

"Didja see that?" Barron shouted, "didja see what he did to me?"

"Y-y-y-yes," stuttered Tiny. "Y-you-you're even now."

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 24. I IMAGINE it's been said before, and I don't claim this as an entirely new observation, but radio is a great thing.

I believe it's our greatest invention—far greater than the automobile, for it don't kill anybody. It don't cost us millions for roads. When we are too lazy, or too old to do anything else, we can listen in.

I heard a lovely talk by Lady Astor from away over in London. She is in favor of woman suffrage for Japan, Italy and France. I don't know what she has got it in for those countries for.

Poor misguided woman, I don't know where she gets the idea that women are peaceful. We give 'em the vote over here and they declared a war the next day.

The more you see of civilization the more you feel that those old cavemen about had the right dope.

Yours,
WILL

"CHICKIE"

Jake Asks Chickie to Join Yacht Party on Cruise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. Her father, Jonathan, fears the pitfalls ahead of her, but his wife allays his fears. Chickie gets a position in a brokerage office. Through one of her co-workers, Janina Knowles, she meets Jake Munson, a rich bachelor. Mary Blake, Chickie's closest friend, marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Mary's brother, Jimmy, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie meets Barry Duane at a party given by Munson. She learns that the party is to last all night and Barry takes her home. The next night Barry calls at her home. Barry takes Chickie motoring, tells her she's beautiful and kisses her. Munson meets Chickie and insists on taking her to dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.

JAKE waited for Chickie until she had telephoned, saying chummily: "Did you get away with that all right? Good—the world is ours!"

She couldn't restrain a throb of pride walking down the room with this handsome, exultant fellow. He made the men at the tables seem bald, shiny-faced, futile. He held out her chair as though she were a princess.

"Now we'll begin to even this score right and you know there's only one way to do it right." He gave an order to the waiter, who presently brought in two glasses of orange sherbet. Jake took a small bottle from his pocket and very quietly poured in a white liquid which might have been water. He took a spoon and mixed it vigorously until a milky foam spread over the top.

"Quaff, my dear, and tell me how you like Jake's only original creation."

She took it hesitant, her eyes lowered, conscious that he was fixedly watching her, that his mouth was becoming tense.

"Chickie, see here! Do you think I'm giving you a drink that might hurt you? There's nothing in that but a spoonful of the finest old gin. A baby could drink it. You had a couple much stronger last Saturday. They didn't seem to cloud your reason any."

"Why—I was only looking at the colors—pretty, aren't they?"

Jake Curious
Has Three Questions to Ask Chickie.

She raised it laughing, tasted something icy and fragrant that went tingling into her veins with a warm radiance, brought a glow of subtle, relaxed peace into her heart.

"Now," said Jake, leaning toward her, "I have three questions. Will you answer them honestly, Chickie?"

"I'm not sure about that, Mr. Munson. They say it's much better for a girl to be wise than frank."

"Who says that—the black one?"

She laughed merrily. "The Bible! We should be wise as serpents and soft as doves."

"You're all there on the last of it—dear. Yes, you dear! But, try out your wisdom, if you want. First—did you think I took you across the bay meaning to keep you there against your will?"

"Oh, no! You couldn't do that!"

"So I see. But did you think I wished to?"

"Not exactly, but I thought it cruel that no one happened to let me know where we were going."

He winced: "Perhaps it was. I didn't really think about it at all. I was feeling high and mighty, as you know. But I'll never let a thing like that happen to you again. The next time—"

"There isn't going to be any next time!"

"Yes, there are—a great many of them—"

Janina Mentioned
Jake Wants to Know If She Is Taken Seriously.

There suddenly darted before her with impish mirth a picture of Jake Munson sitting in their small wicker living room, undergoing the grand quiz by the imperturbable Jonathan. It struck her so funny she laughed outright. Looking at him, her eyes shining and wide like a little girl's, she said sweetly:

"I fear not, sir! Henceforth no one takes this Lily awalking without special permission from the grand czar, Jonathan!"

He grew suddenly pale. "Chickie, did you tell your father I tried to keep you from getting home?"

"No, I didn't. If I told him that I think he would have locked me up with a ball and chain on my ankle. I wonder what your other questions may be?"

"You've half answered them already. I wanted to know if you've taken seriously the things Janina told of me."

"Well, Mr. Munson, Janina doesn't talk much about you, and I think it makes her wild when other girls do."

His lips parted; he drew in his breath, smiling and with relish. "But she warned you against me, didn't she?"

"Oh, I don't know, Mr. Munson, as I'd tell you quite all my secret hopes and thoughts and gossipings!"

"You do, Chickie. You tell much more than you think." He leaned toward her, his glance passing from clear, wide open eyes to the little pointed chin. From these he read her heart—young, ardent, wistful in its purity. Read it and had no doubts. For he was seasoned—not stern and skeptical and 24. He went on slowly, moving his hand over till it rested on hers: "Much more, Chickie. You tell me all I want to know—except this last. Are you a little afraid of me? You don't exactly trust me?"

Work Discussed
Chickie Tells of the Office And Her Ambitions.

She shrugged gayly: "I don't know about that! When I was little I always thought bogies and ghosts came into the parlor at nights. So I used to close my eyes and dash past that closed door with all my might. And you know, I can still run—so if that's what you are!"

He laughed: "You'll not be running away from me, Chickie. You won't wish to run." He pressed her palm hard against the table, his eyes suddenly hot as though they poured fire into hers. She dropped her lids quickly, the blood sweeping into her face. A subtle quivering, more fear than expectance, shot through her.

In a mirror paneling the wall Chickie saw herself, hot cheeked and eager; she saw Munson, dark, intent, smiling. A sense of unreality pressed upon her.

SOPHIE LEVIN, NOTED SOCIAL WORKER, DIES

Holder of Red Cross Medal, Mothers' Pension Leader Claimed by Long Illness

Miss Sophie Levin, founder of the Mother's Pension League, holder of a distinguished service medal for 14 years' work in the American Red Cross and known throughout the country for her activity in welfare work, died at her home, 5700 Munhall road, Squirrel Hill, at 1:45 p. m. yesterday.

Born in Troy, N. Y., Miss Levin was brought to Pittsburgh in childhood.

When the World War broke out she found office work irksome and the day the Lusitania was sunk she offered her services to the late Senator William Flinn in assisting in the campaign for the relief of the starving population in Belgium.

A few months later the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Red Cross was organized and J. Rogers Flannery, its president, drafted Miss Levin to direct the enrollment of women workers.

JOINS WELFARE CAMPAIGN

She remained with the Pittsburgh chapter until 1928 when she directed the house-to-house canvass in the first campaign of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, in which the local Red Cross became a constituent agency.

To Miss Levin, perhaps more than to any other person, is due the credit for the Mothers' Assistance Law in Pennsylvania. She urged the adoption of a system of mothers' pensions while working on a philanthropic committee of the Young Ladies' Relief Society in 1911 and at her own expense made trips to Harrisburg where she eloquently proclaimed her cause before the members of the Legislature.

HEALTH FAILED

Her health failed in 1927, but she refused to relinquish her philanthropic work and called a meeting of officers of the Mothers' Pension League beside her cot in the hospital a few days following a serious operation. She struggled to regain her health and last year traveled through the south and the Pacific Coast. She continued her work for mothers' pensions until she became ill several months ago.

Miss Levin resided with her mother, Mrs. Esther Levin. She leaves a sister, Mrs. David Langer. Her father, Jacob Levin, who died several years ago, was well known among political leaders in the city.

BLAST VICTIM'S RITES TODAY

A double funeral was held today for Theodore Simon, 45, and his wife, Martha, 40, victims of a naphtha explosion which demolished their home at 3511 Bethoven street, Herron Hill, Friday. Services were held in the First German Lutheran Evangelical Church, 531 North Neville street, at 2:30 p. m., the Rev. A. G. Merkins, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Oakland Cemetery.

Simon was dead when dragged from the wreckage of his home. He was sitting at a window while Mrs. Simon was cleaning clothing with a fluid which exploded. Mrs. Simon and Mrs. Jennie Carver, 67, owner of the house, were dragged from the debris and sent to West Penn Hospital, where Mrs. Simon died early yesterday. Physicians believe Mrs. Carver will recover.

LEFT HAND APT AT NEW TASKS

When Dr. Ignatius Hamel points out to his class at Duquesne University that certain gents may have nifty lefts—he doesn't mean Johnny Dundee's or Jack Sharkey's.

What he does mean is slightly involved, but is based on this hypothesis:

"For right-handed people, under certain conditions, the left hand is easier to control than the right."

To illustrate:

Put a group of dots on a sheet of paper. Then on the same piece put another group, apart. Place the paper in front of a mirror.

With a pencil, and looking into the mirror, attempt to draw lines from one group of dots to the other. If you're right-handed, it'll be harder to execute the lines with your right hand than with your left. And why?

That's where Dr. Hamel's theory comes in. The right hand, because of its training, will want to do what it has been trained to do.

The left hand hasn't been trained. It will obey more easily, because all its orders from the mind will be first orders.

As Dr. Hamel says it, the right hand will have to unlearn, and then learn all over again. The left hand, unlearned, can learn without unlearning.

Patrolman Faces Trial for Shooting

EMPLOYERS RAPPED FOR LOW PAY

Speaker Cites Instances In Which He Declares Wages Are Not Adequate

The employer whose purpose in industry is simply to secure abnormal profits is responsible for most of the evils of the world, Edward F. McCrady, of Washington, D. C., told representatives of labor and capital this morning.

McGrady was the first speaker on the program of the two-day regional meeting of the Catholic Conference in Industrial Problems, which opened in the Fort Pitt Hotel today. Very Rev. E. F. Griffin, pastor of St. Mary's of the Mount Church, presided and opened the conference.

Discussing "Wages and Working Conditions," McGrady, who is legislative representative for the American Federation of Labor, branded the greedy employer.

"They contribute nothing to industry because of the low purchasing power of their workers, but they do contribute to those who work for them poverty, disease, discontent and eventually contempt for government and religion."

SCHOOLS ARE RAIDED

"Is it any wonder that every year 1,500,000 boys and girls of school age are thrown into the maw of industry before their time and before they are properly equipped to face life? That millions of children of school age are going to school part time or not at all; that the life of industrial workers is eight years less than that of other workers?

"Individually, employers say they cannot pay more wages than others pay and the result is the unskilled worker is kept on a wage scale that is not above the poverty line.

"The class of workers suffering more than anybody else by pauper wages in this country are the Southern textile workers, common laborers, particularly on railroads, hotel and restaurant employes, workers in chain stores, laundries and factories."

EXAMPLES CITED

Citing some examples, he said:

"If you want to know why hunger, despair and its evil by-products stalk through the streets of every industrial city in this country, let me cite the following:

"The American Aluminum Ore Company pays unskilled labor 31 cents per hour;

"American Steel Company, 31 cents to 40 cents per hour;

"Sterling Steel Company, 27½ cents per hour;

"Lewyn Metal Company, 27½ to 30 cents per hour;

"Packing industries, 34 to 40 cents per hour;

"Continental Can Company, female labor, 16 cents, male labor 27 cents per hour;

"National Lea Company, 27½ to 40 cents per hour;

"American Car and Foundry Company pays many of its skilled workers 40 cents per hour.

"Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Kresge, Piggly Wiggly and similar chain stores pay an average of 25 cents per hour, and in the smaller cities they pay their clerks from $9 to $11 per week."

OPEN DISCUSSION HELD

Following McGready's talk, Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, spoke on wages in the mining industry, and reviewed the history of wage development to the present time.

The Rev. Cyprian Emanuel, of Cleveland, was the last scheduled speaker of the morning session, and he gave "An Economic Analysis of Low Wage Groups." Discussions followed his address.

GIVES UP AIR FOR SPAGHETTI

Ex-Banker, Air Promoter Now Boosts Spaghetti

F. LeMoyne Page has forsaken aeronautics for spaghetti.

Scion of a prominent banker's family and familiar figure in Pittsburgh society, the younger Page, after a short career in the banking business, then in the aviation industry, is busying himself these days putting spaghetti in all its succulence before the public.

"The possibilities of this business," Mr. Page declared between helpings from the exhibition booth at the Food Show in Motor Square Garden, "are unlimited. I have taken a small interest in this company and I have hope of a great future.

"Ah-h-h-h you're dish is empty—you like it. Helene more spaghetti for the gentleman."

"No—no thanks," his interviewer assured him, "we've had quite enough.

"Nonsense—no one ever could have enough."

Today's question: Two Western sociologists recently stated that marriage should be made as hard as divorce, to solve the problems of wedded life. Do you believe this?

EULALIA OPFERMAN, Mt. Lebanon, stenographer: "It's not so hard to get a divorce, that's sure. I do think they should investigate marriage more carefully than they do. Time restrictions on marriage would help many matches. Personally, of course, I don't believe in divorce, at all."

Miss Opferman.

MARGARET YATES, Coraopolis, telephone operator: "I don't think it's very difficult to get divorced. It's much harder to get rid of a girl than to get one, of course. I think marriage should be harder than it is and health certificates should be required of everybody. Disease is one of the chief causes of divorce, you know."

Miss Yates.

FRANK HARRISON, Squirrel Hill, executive: "No, I don't see why marriage should be made as hard as divorce. If a person is of age and wants to go out and get married, that's his business, not the state's. For that matter, I think divorce should be made easier in some places. I don't want it too easy, but there's no reason why a person who's incompatible with his wife should have to commit a wrong to be divorced. Neither should be too easy and neither too hard."

Frank Harrison.

JAMES YOUNGER, Dormont, cellist: "Well, I've tried marriage, but I haven't tried divorce. I don't think you can do anything by law about either marriage or divorce. It's purely a matter for the individual, the way I see it. If a fellow goes out and tramps on a banana peel and slips, that's his hard luck; he should be more careful. But I think divorce should be as agreeable as marriage. There shouldn't be any disgrace in being divorced."

James Younger.

BILLIE EFFINGER, Penn Theater, show girl: "I don't think marriage should be as hard as divorce, but it should be harder than it is now so folks would be choosier. People should be more careful and marriage would be more lasting. I'd make them wait awhile before they were married, so they could be sure their minds were made up. Then, too, they ought to have a doctor's certificate before marriage."

Miss Effinger.

DOLORES ELINE, Los Angeles, Adagio dancer: "I think it should be harder to be married than divorced. If marriage were harder, there wouldn't be so many divorces, because people would be more sure of each other. Wouldn't they? Then there wouldn't be so many silly marriages by people who meet each other one day and run out to get married the next."

Miss Eline.

Simple Services Mark Burial Of Ambassador; Hoover Aide, Diplomats Attend

Honored by the nation, the state and his native city, Alexander P. Moore, who rose from newspaper copy boy to eminence in the American diplomatic service, yesterday was laid to rest in the Allegheny Cemetery.

Distinguished men from all parts of the country and the official representative of the Polish government, to which he had just been designated ambassador, paid tribute to his memory.

Though the throng was great, the services were simple. There was only one digression from the rites for the dead prescribed by the Protestant Episcopal Church. This was when the Rev. Dr. Edward S. Travers, in charge of the reading, spoke for a few minutes of his personal relations with Ambassador Moore.

Assisting Dr. Travers in the service were the Rev. Dr. W. A. Jones, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. A. E. Fletcher, pastor of the Knoxville Methodist Protestant Church. There was no music.

NOTABLES ATTEND

The casket reposed in a broad aisle before the altar. Among the official representatives of the nation and of foreign governments at the services were Col. Campbell B. Hodgers, military aide to President Hoover; Victor Podoski, first secretary of the Polish embassy at Washington, and Joseph P. Corriols, Spanish vice consul at Pittsburgh, representing the King of Spain. Beside them stood the honorary pallbearers who included representatives of the social, civic, business and official life of the nation, state and city.

At the gate of the burial ground members of Letter Carriers Branch No. 84 of Pittsburgh with the Letter Carriers' Band formed an escort to the mausoleum, which stands on the hillside beside the main driveway of the cemetery.

The active pallbearers, all newspapermen who formerly were associated with Mr. Moore during his career as a reporter, editor or newspaper publisher in Pittsburgh, were: J. Albert Grant, W. Earl Grant, Arthur J. Hecker, Harry B. Laufman, Jack A. Simons, W. W. Forster, Richard R. Guy, John P. Cowan, Benjamin W. Bloom and Harry Lichtenthaler.

Mr. Moore's journalistic career covered 44 years. He began as a copyboy on the Evening Telegraph about 1880, became political editor and baseball writer on the Chronicle Telegraph in 1884, managing editor of the Pittsburgh Press in 1900 and publisher of the Leader in 1906.

Golf Club Indoor Tennis Court Opening Mecca For Society Folks

THE opening of the indoor tennis courts in the Pittsburgh Golf Club Saturday night, certainly proved to be a success. Ever so many folks were there. The squash racquets courts were officially opened at the same time, too.

Her wrap was of peach velvet. She was chatting with Mrs. Bertram S. Horne who was wearing a black lace gown and a wrap of black velvet and ermine.

Then, too, I saw Mrs. Franklin C. Irish in a gown of cherry red lace, with a deep décolletage. Later I noticed she was wearing a wrap of crimson velvet.

Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie was wearing a gown of black crepe and a wrap of gold and black brocade.

And I saw Henri and Elizabeth Leovy, too, and Henri wore a very interesting gown of rose-beige moire, fashioned with a brief train and over it she wore a tiered black velvet wrap, with an ermine collar. Elizabeth wore a rather unusual gown, having a yoke of egg-shell lace forming short cap sleeves and the shirt was of crepe in the same shade with many circular insets.

Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, wife of the general chairman of the athletic committee was there wearing the ever popular black chiffon. With her was Mrs. George C. Butgwin, Jr., a member of the women's tennis committee and she was wearing a lovely gown of white crepe. And her slippers matched her gown.

Citizenship Is Too Easy D.A.R. Told

AFTER years in immigration and naturalization work, Robe C. White, assistant secretary of labor, is convinced that danger lies, not in the number of immigrants admitted to this country, but in the ease with which they are rushed into citizenship. This he told the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the chapter's annual Washington's Birthday luncheon in the Hotel Schenley. More stringent requirements are needed, he said, before an alien is given the priceless gift of citizenship. Records show that ability to read "Yes" or "No" has been accepted as fulfilling the stated requirement to "read English;" no alien should be made a citizen unless he can show himself fit to be one, Mr. White went on.

Another speaker introduced by the regent, Mrs. William D. Hamilton, was Miss Margaret B. Barnett, corresponding secretary general of the National Society, who brought the greetings of the national president and outlined the activities of the National Society, which she referred to as "a large wholesale business carried on for the benefit of the 170,000 members in all parts of the world." Miss Barnett also told of the nation-wide radio hookup which the society is to have weekly beginning Thursday evening.

The most human chapter in the life of George Washington is that written in Western Pennsylvania, and if any city in America can claim Washington as its own the city is Pittsburgh, the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney said, prefacing details of that "chapter." Mrs. John Brown Heron, former state regent, was presented by Mrs. Hamilton and the Red Arrow Quartet sang. The decorations were carried out in red, white and blue, with calla lilies, and other flowers, streamers, flags and tapers.

SPORTS CLOTHES THAT ARE CHARMING AND PRACTICAL

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—All the play at Monte Carlo is not at the tables. Some of it is at the tennis tournaments held at the new Country Club here, which has attracted throngs of people who ordinarily are more interested in roulette than in the racquet. For an observer of the mode there has been much of importance to observe for it has been possible to gain an authentic idea of the trend in sports clothes. The practical note is everywhere prevalent during the day, it is only at night that Monte Carlo becomes a fairyland in which every woman is the fairy princess clothed in lovely gowns and shimmering jewels. From cheviot to chiffon is a simple matter for the beautifully groomed women here, who have made dressing a fine art, not merely because they expend money on their wardrobes but because they give it plenty of thought. Many a wealthy woman buys her clothes in haphazard fashion and does not look half as well as the business girl who plans her clothes so that they will harmonize and not be dated.

THERE is a wide latitude in sports clothes this season, but whether the outfit be of jersey, tweed, crepe or flannel the clothes are eminently wearable and are designed for the purpose for which they are intended, without sacrificing one iota of smartness or distinction. We show today two costumes which were worn and sketched at Riviera resorts, so that you may judge for yourself the trend of the mode. The first is of a supple-weave jersey-tweed in a dark grey combined with a darker shade, of a cob-web like jersey in gray with a lighter gray angora thread giving a soft, slightly fuzzy look. This fabric also makes the scarf. The shoes are light gray suede oxfords with darker gray trimmings, the whole making an extremely attractive outfit which would be quite in order for early spring mornings in town.

* * *

THE second costume was worn by Mrs. Monkland, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Graham-White aboard their yacht, when she came ashore at Cannes to visit friends at the famous Carlton Tennis Club. The frock is of heavy white crepe made in one piece with a sleeveless bodice and box-pleated skirt. She wore a yachting jacket of bright blue flannel with brass buttons, a matching blue flannel beret and white canvas strap shoes with brown leather trimmings. Her hostess, Mrs. Graham-White, the former Ethel Levy of theatrical fame was also in blue and white, a sports ensemble with blue skirt and white blouse trimmed with blue and a white beret.

"WHAT CHARM ALWAYS ALLURES?"

Movie Directors say: "Lovely Skin"

"The one thing which is universally alluring is smooth, velvety skin," say 45 of Hollywood's most famous directors. "To a screen star it is invaluable for the public takes to its heart only those whose skin shows flawlessly smooth in the close-up."

Ruth Elder

Hollywood has long been aware of the great appeal beautiful skin has to the emotions. For years 9 out of 10 screen stars have been relying on Lux Toilet Soap to give their skin the lovely smoothness the public demands.

Ruth Elder's beauty and daring have made her famous. She is now under contract to Hoot Gibson and her lovely skin passes the severe test of the close-up easily. "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so wonderfully smooth," she explains.

Betty Francisco

Charming Betty Francisco also uses this delicately fragrant white soap. She says: "It leaves my skin like velvet."

Delightful Kathryn Crawford states: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap." No wonder it is the official soap in all the great studio dressing rooms.

You too — on short notice, can have Hair that is Lovely and Alluring

A "Beauty Shampoo" in 10 minutes

Quickly, Easily, at a few cents cost—you can have a Real "Beauty Shampoo" that will give Your Hair a Loveliness, quite unobtainable by Ordinary Washing.

YOU CAN SAVE TIME, expense and inconvenience, by adopting this simple method of "beauty shampooing" which gives truly professional results at home.

The beauty of your hair, its sparkle . . . its gloss and lustre . . . depends, almost entirely, upon the way you shampoo it.

A thin, oily film, or coating, is constantly forming on the hair. If allowed to remain, it catches the dust and dirt—hides the life and lustre—and the hair then becomes dull and unattractive.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a glass or pitcher with a little warm water added, makes an abundance of . . . soft, rich, creamy lather . . . which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing with it every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Only thorough shampooing will . . . remove this film . . . and let the sparkle, and rich, natural . . . color tones . . . of the hair show.

Ordinary washing fails to satisfactorily remove this film, because—it does not clean the hair properly.

Besides—the hair cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali, in ordinary soaps, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why women, by the thousands, who value beautiful hair, are using Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. It cleanses so thoroughly; is so mild and so pure, that it cannot possibly injure, no matter how often you use it.

You will notice the difference in the appearance of your hair the very first time you use Mulsified, for it will feel so delightfully clean, and be so soft, silky, and fresh-looking.

Try a Mulsified "Beauty Shampoo" and just see how quickly it is done. See how easy your hair is to manage, and how lovely and alluring it will look. See it sparkle—with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store, or toilet goods counter, . . . anywhere in the world.

COOPER SEES MAX AS HELP TO BUCS.

THE strongest promise that the return of Max Carey to the Pittsburgh baseball club in the new role of coach is going to help the Pirates a whole lot in this year's pennant race is seen in the approval given by former teammates of the veteran to the management's action in signing him. Men who have been in the same lineup with Carey, who have fought side by side with him when the going was hottest, are in a better position than any others to know and appreciate his value, and without exception Max's old buddies on the Buccaneer brig hail his coming back as a big break for the Rovers.

Wilbur Cooper

The latest to be heard from on the subject is Wilbur Cooper, star Pittsburgh southpaw of other days, who was one of Carey's clubmates here for 12 full seasons. Cooper, who was in the insurance business in Cleveland during the winter, has just reported to the Shreveport Texas League club for spring training, and writes: "Back with Shreveport for another year in the grand old game. Mighty glad to hear of Scoops' getting back home and sure he will be a big help to the Pirates. Hope they win the old flag this year."

COOPER by the way, celebrates his thirty-eighth birthday anniversary today, but though he has passed out of the big show he is still the master of many younger pitchers in the minors. A brilliant career stretches behind the veteran lefthander. He was one of the comparatively few modern hurlers to win 200 or more games in the major leagues. For the Pirates from the fall of 1912 until the end of 1924 he turned in 202 victories against 150 defeats, a percentage of .560.

After joining the Shreveport club last year, Wilbur quickly established himself as one of the leading slabmen in the Texas League. He won practically two-thirds of his games, his record at the finish showing 17 victories against nine defeats for the high mark of .654. In addition he was just about the best hitting pitcher in the circuit as a batting average of .331 attests. He was used as a pinch-hitter in no fewer than 30 contests.

THE most uncertain shortstopping situation that the major baseball league ever knew has become even wider in its scope in the light of recent developments. Originally the position was open on no fewer than seven of the 16 clubs. That in itself was a new record.

But with the acquisition of Leo Durocher by the Reds as a candidate for Horace Ford's place, followed by Donie Bush's announcement that he plans to shift Chalmer Cissell to second base in the White Sox lineup and try to find a new shortfielder, it appears that, unless Bill Rogell may be considered as certain to make good in Detroit, as many as nine clubs are in doubt about the post between second and third.

Chalmer Cissell

FROM present indications the only regular shortstops of last season who will be found on the same old jobs again this season are Travis Jackson, of the Giants; Elwood English, of the Cubs; Charley Gelbert, of the Cardinals; Tommy Thevenow, of the Phils; Rabbit Maranville, of the Braves; Joe Cronin, of the Senators, and Ralph Kress, of the Browns. Six clubs in the American League and three in the National will try out from two to five candidates in an effort to find capable new players for the important position.

CISSELL, one of the former regulars to be moved, tells of the troubles that beset a shortstop in playing for different batters. "I think Patty Fothergill, of Detroit, hits a harder ball to short than any other player in the American League," he said.

Harry Heilmann, now with Cincinnati, came next. Jimmy Foxx did not bother me very much. His drives went over my head. But Fothergill either handcuffed me with his line drives or hit grounders that skidded or bounded beyond my reach. Marty McManus, on the other hand, boosted my fielding average, as he hit more balls to me than any other player in our league, and they had a habit of bounding perfectly.

ED AND BOB WALSH, pitching for the White Sox and Yankees, respectively, will not be the only new pair of brothers figuring in the spring training activities of the major league clubs. The Phillies have bobbed up with another set in Jack Sherlock, infielder, and his brother, Vincent, an outfielder.

Gar Wood

Jack, tried as a first-sacker by the Pirates a few years ago, was bought by the Phils from the Mission club of the Coast League, and Vince was plucked from a semi-pro league in New York state. He says he is a better ball player right off the sand lots than Lloyd Waner was in the Coast League. Oh, yeah?

GAR WOOD, of Detroit, king of motor boat racers, has been smashing records on the water for years, but has set a new goal for himself, which, if attained, will put all of his previous achievements in total eclipse. A speed of 100 miles an hour is the objective of the motor boat monarch, and he hopes to reach it at Miami during a meet scheduled for March 25 and 26, with Miss America VIII, said to be the fastest craft afloat. Wood says he will retire if he accomplishes the feat. He is the holder of the present world record of 93.123 miles per hour.

WHEN the Notre Dame football candidates come out for spring training in South Bend next month, Coach Knute Rockne will be on hand and in good shape again after his health trip to Florida, but there will be a change in his system. He will tell the players how to do things, but he won't show them, as in past years.

No more demonstrations of tackling, blocking or boxing—this spring at any rate—by Knute in person. He's not going to run any chances of being hurt again. "I've got plenty of seniors who know how it should be done and who can stand a battering better than the old man," he says.

ROCKNE repeats that the transfer of the Notre Dame-Army game of next season from New York to Chicago does not mean the permanent shifting of the annual event from the Eastern metropolis. He

GENTLEMAN JIM DEFENDS PHIL FROM CRITICS

By JAMES J. CORBETT,
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion, 1892-1897.

Phil Scott is not held in very high esteem by most boxing critics in the U. S. A. There are two reasons for this.

One is that Scott is from England and, because of repeated failure of English heavyweights through nearly a generation, the idea has been created that England's representation in heavyweight boxing realms must of necessity (or, perhaps I should say because of precedent) have brittle chins. We Yankees call such collapsible pugilists "horizontal boys."

J. J. Corbett

The second reason is Scott's record on these shores.

Knute Hansen stopped him with a punch in the first round of Scott's initial fight in the U. S. A. After that, Kayo Christner knocked out Hansen and Sharkey beat Christner. Thus, by the logic of prior fistic events—or shall we call it boxing "form"—Scott isn't supposed to be in a class with Sharkey.

UNJUST TO PHIL

A great injustice was done to Scott by many newspaper writers after the Von Porat fight. Without taking all of the facts into consideration, they accused Scott of being a rather shy sort of fighter who took advantage of a low but harmless blow to claim foul and win the decision through disqualification. Such stories undeniably have hurt Scott's reputation as a game warrior.

If I had been in Scott's place in that fight I would have done as he did.

If Von Porat had been in his place, he would have done the same thing—and probably no one would have condemned Von Porat for winning through disqualification of Scott. Rather all the blame would have been showered upon Scott.

Von Porat might have been pictured as a tragic victim of a "murderous punch" and Scott would have been hooted for a million echoes.

Von Porat went into that battle touted as possessing a more terrific right-hand wallop than Jack Dempsey had. I think such a comparison was a bit unjust to Dempsey. Nevertheless, Von Porat was given such credit.

THE VON PORAT FOUL

Yet Scott showed no fear of Von Porat. He fought him at long range, he stepped in close, he actually slugged with the "killer" and when the first round was over the honors seemed to belong to Scott by a shade.

They came out for the second round and in a few seconds Von Porat hit Scott a low punch. Scott didn't invite it—he didn't ask Von Porat to hit low. But Von Porat admits he hit low. Most of the crowd saw the punch land—far below the belt.

Scott collapsed—went down. He tried to get up, but toppled back. He seemed helpless.

Jack Dempsey, who was referee—and who knows when a man is hurt—or faking—studied Scott intently. And Referee Dempsey came to the conclusion that the foul blow had crippled Scott.

And, in full justice and complete fairness, the referee awarded the victory to Scott on a foul. Scott deserved the decision, for the blow was low.

Von Porat admitted it was low, but qualified his offense by saying "I didn't think it had a lot of force in it."

VICTOR OVER CAMPOLO

Condemning a man who was hit by a foul blow is something new in journalism. Yet it was introduced in the U. S. A. against Phil Scott.

There are some who contend that Scott has not fought a really great or genuinely satisfactory fight in the U. S. A. But I'd like to remind them about his battle with Victorio Campolo, the giant Argentine. The latter is a terrific hitter and a glutton for punishment. He is constantly rushing and no faint-hearted man is going to hold him back or remain long in an upright position before him.

But Scott whipped him clearly last summer in a 10-rounder in Brooklyn, a part of Greater New York.

In the first round, Campolo connected with a right hand flush between Scott's eyes. Phil's American manager, Jimmy Johnston, claims Scott didn't come out of the daze for six rounds—that he fought mechanically, instinctively, and yet quite cleverly! That's the test of fighting ability. Any man can fight when his mental faculties are alert. But when they have become dulled by some blow then the call is upon the man's inherent fighting powers.

Scott, mentally out, battled along on instinct for six rounds, scored neatly over Campolo, and then, emerging from the fog in

PLAYERS ACHE AFTER FIRST WORKOUT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 24.—Their muscles and bones a bit stiff and sore, the Pirate pitchers and catchers were all set today for another workout. Manager Jewel Ens sent his sharpshooters, catchers and a few kid infielders through their first sprouts yesterday, but the opening skirmish was light, although it was sufficient to cause aches and pains in the athletes today.

Skipper Ens said the drill for today would be light. The batting end of the trick will be confined to pepper-ball bunting, a form of practice that is very effective, while at the same time fascinating.

BUCS IN "TALKIES"

The first drill was most satisfactory. When the players reached the ball park they found the orchard in its best shape, in fact the visitors were charmed by the verdant spectacle that lay before them. The green carpet was all over the park, the playing field of which is bigger than any layout in majors.

The day was a bit cool, but the sun was out most of the time. The ambitious Buccos first were put through an interesting session of calisthenics with Coach Max Carey acting as the teacher and director. Cameras hummed while this was going on, one of the big "talkie" firms recording the situation in a pretentious manner.

The athletes were not on the park more than an hour before Ens called a halt and ordered all hands back to the hotel. At the same time the members of the squad were told that they could do what they chose for the remainder of the day, so it wasn't long before many of the Pittsburghers, bedecked in knickers and warm sweaters were on their way to the Atascadero golf links, these being located about 10 miles from the hotel.

PLAY GOLF

Jack Grant, a former New England pro, is a friend of the Pittsburgh players, and Jack was host to the party which enjoyed itself on the pretty nine-hole course. The better players on the team are Jess Petty, Oscar Stanage and Johnny O'Connell, although it is said that George Grantham can make them all bow, but George is not on the ground yet.

No serious casualties were reported. Dr. Charles Jorgensen, the new trainer, has treated almost a score of players already, but none had anything worse than aches, pains and that sort of thing. Rolly Hemsley arose yesterday accompanied by cramps. On account of the appendicitis threat that goes with this sort of attack, the catcher was examined. He responded to some treatment from the new trainer and then partook of the first workout.

FOUR BROWNS DEPART

CHISOX RESUME GRIND

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb 24.—(AP.)—The ambitious Chicago White Sox today went into the second week of training for the 1930 American League season, with a field all to themselves for the first time since they arrived. Manager Donie Bush ordered his squad of batterymen and other early arrivals, to appear at Van Daele Park, which was obtained when the field at St. Mary's University proved unsuitable. He also shifted the starting hour to 11 a. m. from 1 p. m., which was necessary while the Sox shared the San Antonio Texas League park with the New York Giants.

DEMPSEY SAYS SHARKEY HAS BIG EDGE

By JACK DEMPSEY
Former Heavyweight Champion

Jimmy Johnston, who is managing Phil Scott, and who thus speaks because of the promptings of loyalty, seems to be about the only outstanding citizen in the U. S. A. who reckons that "My Philip" will beat Jack Sharkey.

Jack Dempsey

Therefore, if things should happen that way—a victory for Scott—it would develop into the most amazing upset in the history of modern boxing. But I don't think anybody will be amazed at the outcome of that bout.

Sharkey may have been an eccentric performer in the past, one of those "in-and-outers," but he has steadied down. And improved—tremendously. He hits cleaner and harder. He puts his BODY into his punches—not merely his arms, as heretofore. He is faster, more scientific and certainly far more seasoned.

JACK KEEN TO WIN

Through several years of his career, Sharkey was not greatly concerned about whether he won or lost. Now the will-to-win is feverish within him. He wants to beat Scott, then Schmeling, and thus qualify as Tunney's successor to the heavyweight championship of the world.

Scott will have to be a mighty man next Thursday night to beat a Sharkey like that.

Sharkey is a powerful two-handed fighter. Scott's right hand is not much. In his left he places almost all his reliance. And it isn't an alternating jab and hook. It is a jab. He hooks but seldom and then there isn't much zip.

I just can't see a jabber holding back Sharkey. It has been done—I mean, jabbing fighters have

Smith, Sarazen Win Exhibition From Farrells

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 24.—Horton Smith, of Detroit, who won the Savannah open golf tournament Saturday, and Gene Sarazen, recent winner of the Agua Caliente open, beat the Farrell brothers, Johnny and Jimmy, in an exhibition match here yesterday, 1 up.

Smith needed assistance from Sarazen on only two holes of the match. Smith scored a 70, one under par; Sarazen had 72.

MAX BISHOP ILL WITH MUMPS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Max Bishop, one of the stars of Connie Mack's world baseball champions, was confined to his room at a local hotel today, suffering from what is feared to be an attack of mumps. His face and neck are badly swollen, giving every indication of being a bad case of mumps. Physicians were to make another diagnosis today in an effort to determine exactly what is wrong with the A's player.

CUBS DOWN TO WORK

AVALON, Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Serious business from now on, was the order in the training camp of the National League champion Chicago Cubs, on Catalina Island today. The early squad, most of the athletes classified as batterymen, yesterday was given a mile limbering up workout by Manager Joe McCarthy, who planned to start bearing down today.

TIGERS IN FIRST DRILL

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Bucky Harris led the vanguard of his Detroit Tigers to Plantfield here this morning for the first "limbering up" practice of the spring training season.

The squad was composed of a dozen or more battery men. Fielders were to arrive later.

TAYLOR JOINS CUBS

Danny Taylor, of West Newton, has left for Chicago where he will join the Cubs for spring training at Catalina Island. It will mark Taylor's fourth hit for a major league berth. He has tried out with the Washington and Brooklyn clubs and once previously with the Cubs.

STRICT RULES LAID DOWN BY ENS

By Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 24.—Manager Jewel Ens laid down a neat behaviour barrage before his Pirates jumped off in today's drill. The new boss of the club did not make a lengthy speech to his players as regards their conduct, but he did let them know that even first offenders would be dealt with harshly this year.

There are players on every ball club who need rules and on this account, the good boys who do not require disciplinary measures are made to suffer with the rest, as it were. In any event, Ens announced that no quarter would be shown to those who violate the club rules as regards the drinking of intoxicants, gambling and other bad habits.

On at least one occasion last summer, some furniture was broken in a hotel room while the Pirates were on the road. It seems that the guilty party got off very lightly; but a recurrence this season of anything of this nature will bring a heavy fine and suspension. Ens dislikes to take any of the players' money, but he will insist that all athletes act like gentlemen should.

RULES HARD TO ENFORCE

The owners of the team will get behind Ens, they state, in order to enforce the rules. On account of the promiscuous drinking going on in many walks of life, it is much harder to enforce training rules than it was in the days before prohibition, when the average player was content with a bottle of beer or two. The bootleggers serve the players as they do other guests in our up-to-date hotels, thereby making conditions much harder on the directors of the club. While the team is in Paso Robles the players must be in the hotel and in their rooms by 11 o'clock.

Chillysauce

The present squad of Pirates may be the largest in the history of the club by the time the second guard arrives next Sunday.

Shires Holds Out For $15,000 Contract

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—If and when Charles Arthur (Whataman) Shires dons a baseball uniform for the Chicago White Sox this season, it will be after he has signed a contract to receive $15,000 a year, Shires said so himself.

"If they don't pay me $15,000 a year, or sell me off to someone else who can pay that much, then I'll find something else to do," he declared today.

"Why, if I wanted to quit baseball, I could start out right now as a sales manager for $10,000 a year. But I want to stay in the game, I like it and want to stick—provided, of course—."

Coming here to referee a wrestling match, Shires accomplished that task in his efficient manner, and then lingered some time before returning to his native village of Italy, 40 odd miles southeast of here.

Players are trooping in from all directions with and without passports and credentials.

Manager Ens was standing in the lobby of the Paso Robles Hotel this afternoon when a big boy carrying a suitcase on which were fastened two balls approached him. The young man was from Santa Barbara and in his hand he had a letter of introduction to Manager Ens. A friend of the Pirate pilot sent the husky boy to Ens with the letter and Jewel, being of the type that likes to give everybody a chance, told the lad to join the family.

The youngster's name is Harold McTavish and he surely is strong enough to lay on MacDuff until somebody yells enough. McTavish is almost as big as Dazzy Vance and he is of the blond species. I'll bet that guy is a catcher," said one of the receivers when he saw him land with his hats and satchel. The catcher's frame were well grounded—Mac is both a catcher and first sacker.

NEW RECRUITS

Infielder John Skuba, the Los Angeles semi pro who was ordered to report here with the second squad, is due to reach camp today as the result of a new trailer order. The sickness of Floyd Young, South Carolina recruit, who became ill while heading for camp, has caused Skipper Ens to switch his plans to the extent noted.

Still another unknown is on his way to camp in the person of Fred Woods, a right-hand pitcher who is coming by stage tomorrow. Woods, who lives over the mountains about 40 miles from the Buccos' camp will get a trial upon the recommendation of A. P. Griggs, president and manager of the Wichita club, of the Western League, who is here with the Pirates. Griggs and his Class A team are very friendly with the Pirates, there being quite a few of the Wichita players in camp.

BRAILEY SCORES ACE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Ora L. Brailey, of the Inverness Country Club, Toledo, O., scored a hole in one here Saturday. Brailey used a five iron to sink his tee shot at a 150-yard hole at the Everglades Club.

PITT, DUKES KEEP UP GOOD FLOOR WORK

BLUFFITES TAKE ON TITANS TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

When one comes right down to it, if one ever does, there wasn't much to get hot and bothered over as the college basketballers campaigned throughout the district last week. A few of the boys rambled through their programs without being beaten, and one or two others got an even break or better, which in these days of storm and strife, may be considered fair.

Pitt, Westminster, the Dukes, and Waynesburg held the spotlight. Pitt won a brace of Big Four games, which puts Doc Carlson and his Panthers in an enviable position as far as titular rating in concerned. The Dukes added two more to their win streak, with Westminster doing the same. Waynesburg played three tough ones and took two victories, stopping Grove City for the feature feat of its week.

GREAT "FREEZE" ACT

It remained for Dr. Carlson and his Panthers to cause the greatest furore by the way in which they played West Virginia here Sat'day. Tied at 17-all at the end of the half, Pitt put on the greatest "freeze" act that has ever been seen in Pittsburgh, and during the second half, only six points were scored, four by Pitt and two by West Virginia.

Doc's idea is o. k., as far as the game itself is concerned but, after the novelty wears off of seeing Charley Hyatt and his mates play horse with the ball or stand in idyllic posture in the middle of the floor, like a poet looking for a square meal, the fans are going to squawk as only basketball fans can squawk.

Doc wouldn't send his boys into the Mountaineer's defense because he didn't want 'em to get all cracked up, and take the chance of having the bigger and more rangy West Virginians get that ball and win that ball game. Very good reasoning on the part of our Doctor.

Coach Stadsvold told me after the game that he was just as certain that he was not going to permit his team to come out and try to take the ball from Pitt. He kept his team back in a close zone defense, which was certainly a strong one. It was a case of get a lead and keep it, but it won't win the next Bok prize for interesting basketball.

DUKES MIGHT COP

It begins to look as though Chick Davies' Dukes might win this Conference title after all, despite the fact that Westminster is very firmly intrenched in first place at present. The Dukes are looking like a real basketball team more every time they play. They put up a whale of a game against the accurate shooting and big Grove City team.

The Dukes have Westminster to get past tomorrow night, a task not to be relished, but if they do, they'll be perched right on top of the world, and reaching down for the tail to give her a swing. A win tomrrow moves the locals out in front, and makes it imperative that the Titans turn the tables when they come here later on.

Graduate Manager John D. Holohan, of Duquesne University, announced last night that the Dukes will play a football game with Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., on Nov. 31, 1931.

The Waynesburg Yellow Jackets open this week's play by tackling Bethany in a Conference struggle at Waynesburg tonight. Having dumped both Geneva and Thiel on their own floor, the Jackets are confident of giving the Nussmen a busy evening. Bethany barely nosed out the Wolfpack in the 1. st game played between the rivals at Bethany earlier in the season.

COLUMBIA IN LEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Thanks to a form reversal engineered by Cornell, the Eastern intercollegiate basketball lead is held today by Columbia. While the Lions were upsetting Syracuse in a non-league game, Cornell invaded Philadelphia and whipped Penn, 27-24, in the most amazing upset of the league season.

Penn's downfall dropped the Quakers into second place. Cornell moved up to fourth place, a step behind Yale.

KID VICTOR

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, outpointed Vic Burrone, of New York, in a 10-round bout here yesterday. Chocolate floored Burrone six times.

FLYNN REBOOKS ANDRUCCI, SMACKEY

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, and Andy Andrucci, of the East End, who stole the show with their hectic second bout at the Moose Temple last Friday night, have been rematched to box the semi-final in the same ring next Friday night. Promoter Francis Flynn is putting in the bout again by popular request as well as at the behest of Andrucci, who lost via the referee's decision after the judges had disagreed.

One of the judges voted for Andrucci, the other for a draw and the referee for Smackey. This writer saw Andrucci the winner in all but the first and last of the six rounds. Smackey cut loose with a vigorous body attack toward the finish and had his opponent in a bad way at the final bell, but the rally came too late like the pardon in the old melodramas.

ARENA TRANSFORMED

The return pairing will back up a 10-round windup between Gene Moretti, rangy middleweight, of Atlantic City, who last week defeated Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, at McKeesport, and Young Saylor, of Charlerol. The Moose arena will be transformed for the occasion, with the entire ring on a raised platform extending out from the footlights and providing upwards of 500 more seats. The expanded capacity lies in the fact that the corner seats downstairs and in the balcony, which hitherto have not been of value, now will become ringside points of vantage, while bleacher seats on the stage will add space for about 200 more spectators there. A new flood light is being made for over the ring.

FANS LIKE GARDEN CARD

The fans are gradually warming up to the new boxing club in Duquesne Garden and Promoters Nate Leff and Johnny Ridge are getting ready to handle a capacity crowd at their initial show Wednesday night. They have a good windup booked between Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Vincent Hambright, hard-hitting Filipino welterweight, of Cincinnati, along with a well-rounded preliminary card featuring Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, against Phil Heckert, of Cincinnati, in the six-round semi-final. Young Nanci, of Swissvale and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, bantams, are in the second bout, and Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, and Tommy Ward, of the South Side, in the opening event.

Between Rounds

The appearance of two McKeesport favorites on the card is expected by Promoter Jim McGinty to stir up considerable interest in his battles in the Palisades roller rink arena Thursday night. They are Allen Beatty, who boxes Jackie Herman, of Wheeling, in the eight-round semi-final, and Teddy Werth, who will be one of the principals in the second bout. Eddie Brannon, rising Negro lightweight, of the Hill, meets Johnny Bacon, of Buffalo, in the 10-round windup.

Gene Moretti, who returned to Atlantic City Saturday, will be back here Wednesday to conclude his training at Flynn's gym for his bout with Young Saylor at the Moose Temple Friday night. He also is booked against Rudy Ceder, of Terrytown, in the same ring, March 21.

Young Corbett, of Fresno, Cal., who defeated Jackie Fields, the welterweight champion, in a non-title bout at San Francisco last Saturday, was born and reared in Pittsburgh, but moved to California with his folks before he entered the ring. His manager also is a former Pittsburgher. Eighteen thousand persons witnessed his battle with Fields.

FRANK NOVAK READY

Frank Novak, former local amateur heavyweight champion, has recovered from the effects of having stepped on a nail and injured his foot and is ready now to resume his ringwork. His stablemate, Billy Schoma, 124-pound, also is in fine form, according to his manager, Cy Siebert.

Two A. M. A. champions will meet in one of the feature bouts of the annual smoker of the Pittsburgh Council, Knights of Columbus, in the Moose Temple Wednesday night of next week. They are Billy Wilson, of McKeesport, senior middleweight champion, and John Price, of Carnegie, junior champion. Lawrence Lyons, of the Willow Club, of Lawrenceville, National Rye-weight champion in 1927, boxes Tony Marino, of McKeesport, A. M. A. senior champion last year, in another bout, and there will be six other battles.

TWO SHOWS TONIGHT

Only two boxing shows are slated in Western Pennsylvania tonight. Sam Weiss, of Philadelphia, and Jimmy Mahoney, of Chicago, top a card in the New Castle Jolly Bowl, while Maxie Stroh, of Erie, and Benny Nabors, of New York, do the honors at Oil City. Paul Ballet, of the North Side, boxes Tony Brown in one of the preliminaries at Oil City. Tommy Crawley, South Side lightweight, meets Leonard Zazzarino in a return bout of 10 rounds at Jersey City, N. J., where he upset the dope by beating the Great Zazz a week ago.

Answer to query—The new Everlast Boxing Record Book for 1930 has just been issued. You should be able to purchase a copy from newsdealers or by writing to the Everlast Sports Publication Company, Inc., 33 Union Square, West, New York City.

Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, Negro bantamweight, boxes Marshall Croquette, of Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final to the Battling Gizzy-Lonie Severo eight-rounder at East Liverpool, O., tomorrow night. Ray Mitchell and Johnny Dill box the second bout and Joey Tanti and Francis Hebaugh the opener, both four-rounders.

'CHUTE PLUNGE KILLS BOXER

Dummy Mahan

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Fred (Dummy) Mahan, a leading welterweight boxer, was dead today, the victim of a parachute plunge undertaken to cure him of a childhood malady which had robbed him of his speech and hearing.

Mahan fell 3,200 feet to his death at Mills Field yesterday when his parachute failed to open. The fatal accident was witnessed by a large crowd, including several deaf mutes.

The drop was one of several efforts made by Mahan to regain his voice and hearing.

Mahan climbed into the cockpit of a plane piloted by Col. Harry Abbott, of Berkeley.

Abbott, inventor of a "fool proof" parachute, said he instructed Mahan by writing that he was to count six before pulling the ripcord of the parachute.

E. E. Mouton, federal aeronautics inspector, and Abbott both said they believed that Mahan had pulled the rip cord prematurely, causing the parachute to tangle and not open.

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The spitter is a beast. The law says "NO!" to his vile and vicious habit. But, for every spitter caught, there are hundreds who escape . . . hundreds who still roll cigars with filthy fingers—and spit on the ends! It is a fact that more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. The Gallatin club of the American Soccer League of Western Pennsylvania, champion, qualified to represent the district in the inter-state games for the national amateur cup by defeating the Heidelberg Eagles, 3 to 2, at Bower Hill playground yesterday afternoon.

While the champions had the edge and possibly deserved to win it must be stated that the Eagles certainly gave their rooter followers a fright before the game was over. When Frank Bragg smashed the ball into the Eagles net with only eight minutes to go the Gallatin club was back up the banner that has been carried by the Green and Gold and other Heidelberg club with distinction in the same territory.

CHANGE TACTICS

The Brown and White changed its usual tactics of making a second half grandstand play and getting away to a good start, quickly scored two goals through Chislogni and Secare while Andy Humble barged the sphere into the net for Heidelberg. When the half time mark came around the upriver aggregation had a 2-goals-to-1 lead.

The Eagles tried hard in the second half, but again the Gallatin halfbacks played good soccer, and Andy Savage succeeded in tying the score.

From then on it was nip and tuck. With eight minutes to go Frank Bragg beat Hitch and the Brown and White of Gallatin, for the first time in its history will represent Western Pennsylvania in the final rounds of the national amateur cup.

Wittmer and Booth Fight During Cage Game

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24.—Saturday night's Eastern Intercollegiate League basketball game here between Yale and Princeton was interrupted by an exchange of punches between Abbie Booth, Yale gridiron star, Ed Wittmer, Princeton of Pittsburgh, and a star of last year's Tiger eleven.

The boys engaged in a scuffle during the game and Booth came out second best, receiving a bloody nose when his proboscis stopped one of Wittmer's punches. The boys were parted before the scrap had gone long, shook hands and swung their efforts back to basketball.

CAREY CARRIES ON DESPITE MIAMI FLOP

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Whether or not the Madison Square Garden millionaires experience a major operation in the region of the box office in connection with the Sharkey-Scott fight show Thursday night, they have not lost confidence in the future of this Southern Florida center of sports activity and pleasure-hunting.

Before departing tonight for New York, where he sails next Friday for South America on a business trip, William F. "Big Billy" Carey, the Garden's chief executive, made it clear he intended to stick to his five-year plan of promoting annual heavyweight shows in Miami, win or lose.

Carey feels that due to circumstances which, in part at least, were beyond the Garden's control the Phil Scott-Jack Sharkey match was made an essential part of the heavyweight program, in spite of a lack of popular enthusiasm for it. As he looks at it the Garden is "taking it on the chin" in the interest of putting through a match as a "necessary evil," designed to help settle the heavyweight championship no later than the summer of 1930.

ADVANCE ONLY $80,000

This would pave the way, next winter in Miami, for a pair of outstanding title contenders to be matched.

Meanwhile, the Garden directorate will consider itself fortunate to break even on this week's show or even to pocket a small loss. With the event only four days off the actual cash on hand today was not in excess of $80,000. As much more was considered as the equivalent of cash, in the form of definite orders and reservations, but the total advance sale of around $162,000 compared unfavorably with the total gate of $407,000 for last winter's show.

The attitude now is that if the receipts pass $250,000 three rousing cheers will be given by all connected with the financial operation. On this basis, Sharkey's end would be around $60,000 and Scott's $50,000. Phil doesn't share equally with Jack until after the $200,000 mark is passed. Last year Sharkey received a flat $100,000 and Stribling something like $65,000.

FINISH TRAINING

As the combatants, all 10 of them, swung into the final stretch of tapering-off work today there was no substantial change in the prevailing opinion that Sharkey will win easily from Scott and probably knock out the Englishman in short order. Some idea has developed that Sharkey is acting a trifle stale due to the absence of much snap in his last two or three workouts. Even if true, the experts consider he will need to be very, very stale in order to change their unanimous opinion of Scott's chances, or rather the lack of any.

PIRATE ROOKIES 'SKETCHED' BY FREDERICKSON

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Frank Frederickson, manager of the Pirate hockey team, is an actor who can strike poses that are very convincing. Too, he is something of a quick-change artist—when the quick changes have to do with facial expressions.

For example: Mention the 1929-30 National Hockey League season to Pilot Freddie and he strikes a pose so defected that he is gloom personified; mention the 1930-31 season to the same gentleman and notice the transformation—his joy and optimism are so great that he is unable to contain them, and they run over into a broad, bland smile.

Frederickson returned from a two-weeks tour of three Canadian provinces, where he went in a successful quest for new ice talent, on Saturday in time to see his skaters nosed out by the Montreal Maroons 5-4 in a stirring battle at the Garden. Freddie oozes woe from every pore when he says that the Pirates contributed more than their share of the thrills, fancy skating and stick handling and deserved to win the decision. He radiates optimism (and he says, it's because he feels that way) when he tells of his recent trip to Canada and the Pirate prospects for next season.

FIVE ARE SIGNED

As a result of Frederickson's trip, five new performers are assured for the 1930-31 Pittsburgh squad, for five players of proved ability were signed and will report next fall. In addition to the five who were signed, the Bucco boss arranged to have seven other young warriors come here for tryouts and succeeded in adding two stars to the Pirate negotiation list, which means that they cannot sign with another club before first notifying the Pirates and giving them a chance to match the offer.

Brief sketches of the five new Pirates, as prepared by Frederickson follow:

RALPH SMITH—Nineteen years of age. Weight 182. Left wing for Bonnyrain team in Manitoba. Very fast skater and fair shot.

LOUIE SMITH—Brother of Ralph. Twenty-three years of age. Weight 185. Plays defense for Bonnyrain.

WILFRED CUE—Twenty-one years of age. Graduate again natural goalie. With Winnipeg Monarchs in Sr. B. League in Manitoba.

JAMES A. KELLY—Twenty-two years of age. Weight 145. Red headed Irishman. Fast, clever left wing for Melville Millionaires in Saskatchewan. Recommended by local scouts. Candidate star. Great crowd pleaser.

FRED CARTER—Twenty-three years of age. Weight 145. Is right winger and pal of Harold Darragh type.

TO GET TRYOUTS

Seven others who have not been signed but who have agreed to come here for tryouts:

SEWARD LUND—Twenty-three years of age. Weight 175. Plays defense for Elmore, Manitoba.

JACK McINTOSH—Twenty-three years of age. Weight 165. Plays center for Brandon Senior League.

HARVEY BOGUE—Twenty-two years of age. Weight 180. Plays defense for Reserve Area in Sr. B. League.

BILL WISEMAN—Nineteen years of age. Weight 140. Has been left winger in Junior hockey in Saskatchewan.

JIMMY DEWEY—Seventeen years of age. Weight 140. Plays right wing for Moosejaw Club in Saskatchewan.

EDDIE MALONE—Twenty-one years of age. Weight 145. Plays right wing for Virden Club in Saskatchewan.

THOMAS COWAN—Twenty-five years of age. Weight 175. Plays right wing for Brandon Juniors, in Manitoba.

NEGOTIATION LIST

BILL KERR—Seventeen years of age. Weight 180. Looks like Eddie Shore, of Boston, and appears to be just as much at home at defense. Plays for Junior Elmwood team, of Winnipeg.

WALTER CHANT—Nineteen years of age. Weight 165. Plays defense for Winnipeg Senior League.

PLAY BRUINS TOMORROW

Frederickson also announced that he had arranged to have scouts in Port William, Port Arthur, Winnipeg, and other cities in Manitoba and Saskatchewan advise him of stars as they appeared in the northern hockey sky. He concluded by saying that although they are somewhat slow in building a town hall for the hockey team, he is showing plenty of speed in building a hockey team for the town hall.

The Pirates are to conclude their season series with the World Champion Bruins in Boston tomorrow night.

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE.

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Quite an attractive array of games is scheduled for the followers of league basketball in the Greater Pittsburgh District tonight. In the Allegheny County League the Fintex team will make an attempt to continue its brilliant showing of the last two weeks when it entertains the Charleroi Lions at Columbus Temple. The Fintex quintet suffered no ill effects as a result of its gruelling four-extra period battle with the crack J. J. Veronas last night, and will take the floor in the pink of physical condition.

OLD RIVALS CLASH

Old rivals come together in the two West Penn League battles on the program, Art Scher taking his Y. M. H. A. passers to the North Side Moose Hall to meet Joe Goetz's Ray Schneiders, first-half champions, while the North Side Community five is the opponent of the South Side Falcons in the Falcon Hall. Both games have created unusual interest in local amateur circles and should attract fine turnouts.

Joseph Horne's plays at Trinity Cathedral in the Central Pittsburgh League, St. Philip's plays at the Crafton Presbyterians in the Crafton-Ingram Church loop, Bylesby Company is at Equitable Gas and Sales-Service is at Duquesne Light in the Philadelphia Company circuit, Reick's plays at Pittsburgh & Lake Erie in the Commercial-Industrial loop, while the Mt. Washington Triangles are at St. Ann's Lyceum in a Metropolitan League contest.

SPEER IN DEMAND

The excellent work of Al Speer, veteran local basketball official, who handled the recent four extra-period battles between Fintex and the Veronas in a faultless manner, is attracting widespread attention in Western Pennsylvania, and, according to reports from reliable circles, several schools entered in the annual eliminations of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association are making an effort to obtain his services for the eliminations which start in the Pitt Stadium pavillion this week.

Speer has handled numerous high school games, principally at North Union Township, Uniontown, Ambridge and Aliquippa this season and all seemed to be pleased with his efforts. North Union Township and Uniontown are entered in the eliminations and coaches of both schools have approached Speer with the idea of having him handle their games in the tournament.

DEMPSEY SAYS JACK HAS EDGE

just toyed around with really formidable foemen. But this 1930 Sharkey—let's make no mistake about him. He can fight. It used to be added "when he is in the mood." I believe that now he always is in the mood.

He has quit playing around in the ring. A fight is a serious matter with him.

PHIL LACKS DYNAMITE

I am not underestimating Scott. He put up a good battle against Campolo. I can think of quite a few heavies he can whip. But I do not think he classes with Sharkey.

If Phil's right hand were loaded with a little dynamite he would be exceedingly dangerous. But so far he has shown no devasting wallop. He hits hard and clean. But Sharkey's jaw can stand such shots.

Sharkey's more rugged. I am certain that he can take more than Scott, even though Phil is the bigger man. Deal out equal punishment to each and I feel that Scott would slow sooner and sag.

Many experts tag Phil as a first or second round victim. I've always maintained that the first round is the most dangerous for any fighter. More men are flattened in that session than in any other that can be named. For it takes a round for a man to get "warmed up" and, if he is hit solidly before then, he's liable to go out.

Just the same, I don't see any fast finish for Phil—not in the crystal at which I am gazing. That British boy may do an awful lot of surprising. I think he will stick around far longer than many anticipate.

SCOTT OUTCLASSED

Sharkey has too much class for Scott—that's how I regard the fight. But let's not forget that Phil may do some bewildering tricks with his left hand. Sharkey may throw an arm out of joint—Stribling did it last season—and, therefore, the smart fellow will keep his money in his pocket and have nothing but a rooting interest in the proceedings.

Rawlins Is Victor In Squash Final

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Herbert N. Rawlins, of New York, won the singles title and Boston won the team championship in the annual national squash racquets championship tournament concluded here yesterday.

Rawlins won the individual laurels by defeating Don Strachan, of Philadelphia, 15-10, 10-15, 16-15, 15-9, in the final round.

Buffalo was Boston's victim in the final team match, 3-2.

Pittsburgh entries failed to win a match in the singles, but defeated Cleveland, 3-1, in an early-round team competition.

SCOTT UNDERRATED

It is my belief that Scott is underrated by the folks in the U. S. A., that he has been handicapped by a certain prejudice which exists against English fighters, and that Phil is destined to prove that he is far greater than many even in their most charitable moments have credited him with being. He can box skillfully. He will have to if he hopes to make good against the artful Sharkey.

Reports from Scott's training camp at Miami, Fla., indicate that he is in superb shape. I picked him, because of his boxing ability, to outpoint Campolo. But Sharkey, unlike the Argentine, is a master boxer.

In my next article, tomorrow, I will give you my impressions of the American champion. Then I shall compare and contrast Sharkey and Scott as they appear to on the eve of the 15-round semi-final for the world's championship that will be fought at Miami, next Thursday night.

Vet Charley White To Try Once More

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—His two-round technical knockout defeat by Henry Perlick has not convinced Charley White, once famous left-hooker, that he is done as a boxer.

White, who was saved from being counted out when his handlers tossed in the towel at the Coliseum last Friday night, admits Perlick knocked him down four times, but says he was stunned by a head-on collision with the Kalamazoo (Mich.) lightweight twin at the end of the first round, which made him a mark for Perlick's bunches in the third.

White will seek another opportunity to show that 39 years, six of them in retirement from boxing, have not stopped him.

HARPSTER TO SPEAK

Howard Harpster, former Tech star, will be the guest of the Young Hi Class at the East Liberty Y. W. C. A. next evening for dinner. This class is staging a rally and have invited Howard to come out as speaker and he has accepted. The entertainment for the occasion will be Paul Brown, a Tech student, who is one of the advisers of the Younger Hi outfit.

C. & I. LEAGUE HOLDS CONFAB TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS.

The Commercial and Industrial League will hold its second meeting this evening at Honus Wagner's, and when this get together is over, it is expected one of the best leagues ever sponsored in this district will have been launched. The clubs already enrolled are Gimbels, Carnegie Steel, Reick McJunkin, Mine Safety, Joseph Hornes, National Union, B. and O., Reliance Life and it is possible Rosenbaum's will board the C. & I. band wagon.

Much business confronts the managers this evening. The election of officers as well as other business is to be transacted. This loop restricts the clubs under its jurisdiction to playing only employes and this welfare work is making a hit with executives.

Tomorrow evening the eight clubs that will make up the Central League may be announced. A number of new clubs have made application for entrance. W. O. W. won last season after a hectic battle with the East Liberty Red Sox. Stephen-Jenkins, of Homestead, has applied for a franchise. With Roosevelt, Soho, the Jimmy Cosletta, Fintex, another new club, and one that is going to make a name locally, Etna W. O. W. and the introduction of the Waverly Oil Club, there is reason to feel that the fastest league in the city will be started on its way.

The City League also will have its meeting this evening at the offices of Book Shoe in Market street. President Harry Yerx says four clubs are under consideration for the berths vacated by Reliance Life and W. L. Reineckers. When the meeting is over another compact eight-club loop is expected to be ready.

Young Men's Star Circle Celebrates

About 300 members of the Young Men's Star Circle of the Immaculate Conception Church of Bloomfield enjoyed the first anniversary of the club last evening in the J. L. Thomas Hall, Pearl street and Liberty avenue.

The affair was sponsored by the Rev. Father Vitale, chaplain of the club; Rev. Father Fresco, Rev. Father Phillip and Americo Zappa.

Tommy Bowler put on quite a number of boxing bouts, much to the discomfiture of Referee K. O. Zappa. Quite a long list of entertainers, including Bobby Burke's quartet, Katherine O'Neill, Ruth and Mildred Brown, Louis Zappa, Mamaux and his boys, Sonny and Manric, Donett and Mamaux, and Billy Jarrett. Tom Birks, of the sporting department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, spoke.

Keeps Hair Neat

Rich-looking, Orderly

If your hair lacks natural gloss and lustre, or is difficult to keep in place it is very easy to give it that rich, glossy, refined and . . . orderly appearance . . . so essential to well-groomed men.

Just rub a little Glostora through your hair . . . once or twice a week . . . or after shampooing, and your hair will then stay, each day . . . just as you comb it.

Glostora softens the hair and makes it pliable. Then—even stubborn hair—will stay in place of its own accord.

It gives your hair that natural, rich, well-groomed effect, instead of leaving it stiff and artificial looking as pastes do.

Glostora also keeps the scalp soft, and the hair healthy by restoring the natural oils from which the hair derives its health, life, gloss and lustre.

Try it!—See how easy it is to keep your hair combed—any style you like—whether brushed lightly or combed down flat. If you want your hair to lie down particularly smooth and tight, after applying Glostora, simply moisten your hair with water before brushing it.

A large bottle of Glostora costs but a trifle at any drug store.

explains again that it was done merely to give the Irish an earlier start toward the coast for the meeting with Southern California, and that the Army game will be back in New York in 1931 and 1932.

Even with five home games scheduled, the Notre Dame team will travel 8,400 miles next season. Rockie figures. "That's not much travel for us," he adds. "We know how to move here and there."

Young Jake Schaefer

DESPITE his failure to do much in defense of his crown since he last won the world 18.2 balkline billiard championship, Young Jake Schaefer is still the greatest of all modern balkline players, according to Maurice Daly, but at that the 81-year-old cue authority refuses to concede that the present champion or anybody else is even close to the old standards set by Young Jake's father. "We have balkline billiards today simply because old Jake was too good for any game on the table in the past," Daly said. "He could do everything so much better than the other fellow that they had to make a change. When he once ran 3,000 unfinished at straight rail the officials introduced eight-inch balkline. Then followed 10-inch, 12, 14 and the present 18-inch game. Schaefer forced the officials to devise the anchor in order to stop him.

"THE original Jake was the pioneer in everything we have now. The stars of the present have not displayed anything new. They merely have perfected what old Jake discovered. I'd like to see him in action today. There is no doubt that he would show the public some marvelous billiards.

"Frank Ives often was rated on a par with Schaefer, but it is unfair to make such a comparison, as Ives merely copied everything new tried by Jake. I can see no played who compares with the present champion's father in skill, execution or resourcefulness. I have been watching the best for more than 65 years, and old Jake still gets my vote."

CORSAIRS GIVEN LIGHT DRILLS

24 (AP.)—Bob Shawkey, new manager of the New York Yankees, is prepared to be a lenient pilot for the boys as long as they behave. Under Shawkey's "common sense" policy there will be golf for those who want to play and no rigid curfew except for those who take advantage of his leniency.

FAULKNER WANTS $12,000

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Scarcity of left handed pitchers in the ranks of the Brooklyn Robins seems to be the big motive back of the holdout of Jim Faulkner, southpaw, drafted from Buffalo last fall. Faulkner, according to club officials, seeks a salary of about $12,000, a big price even for first-rate experienced pitchers.

Tilden and Coen Win Doubles Title

BEAULIEU, France, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Bill Tilden and Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., America's first and eighth ranking tennis players, today won the doubles title in the Beaulieu tournament, defeating Dr. Daniel Prenn and Heinrich Kleinschroth, a German team, by scores of 8-6, 6-2, 6-4 in the finals.

HILL HEADS COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Donald M. Hill, of Boston, has been named chairman of the Wightman Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. At the annual meeting in St. Louis Harris F. Rhea, of Chicago, was named as chairman of this committee. It announced later that business would prevent his directing the necessary time to Wightman Cup affairs.

MARKET AFTER MIXED START TURNS WEAK

Liquidation Attributed to Renewed Downward Trend of Cotton, Wheat

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 — (AP.) — The stock market turned weak today after an early period of irregularity. Liquidation of stocks was generally attributed to the renewed weakness of wheat and cotton futures, which sank to new low prices for the season although indications of firming money rates, uncertainties over tariff legislation and lack of an investment demand were also stressed as contributing factors.

Early declines ranged from 1 to 10 points with rather feeble recoveries later. Trading was largely professional in character with much of the liquidation traced to houses with Florida connections. A powerful group of bear traders has been operating from southern resorts for the last few years.

NEWS FAVORABLE

There were several favorable developments in the day's news. The annual dividend of Coca-Cola was increased from $4 to $6 and an extra payment of 12½ cents a share was authorized on South Penn Oil. The Consolidated Gas Company of New York, the Pierce-Arrow Automobile Company, the Midland Steel Products Company and the Chesapeake Corporation all reported 1929 earnings in excess of the year before, while Beechnut Packing and Timken Detroit made unfavorable showings.

High priced industrials and specialties were again the hardest hit in the selling movement. J. I. Case broke 10 points but quickly recovered 5 points of its loss. Auburn Auto sold down 8¾, Gulf States Steel 7, Safeway Stores 4½, and Atchison, New York and Harlem, National Lead, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, common, and first preferred, American Telephone and Oriental Theaters Equipment sold down 3 to 4 points. U. S. Steel common was hammered down 3½ points to 179½, or 10 points below last week's high.

NEW LOWS FOR YEAR

Woolworth and United Fruit each dropped more than 2 points to new low levels for the season. Among the many other representative issues to sell 2 or more points below last week's closing quotations were New York Central, Union Pacific, American Water Works, Brooklyn Union Gas, International Telephone, North American Company, Standard Gas and Electric, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Corn Products, Johns Manville, Sears, Roebuck, Simmons Company, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Vanadium.

Columbian Carbon was among the few new issues to show independent strength. An order for 10,000 shares of Indian Motorcycle was executed for English sources, and the stock advanced to a new high level for the year, with buying attributed to rumors of the acquisition by the Indian company of an important British company.

Stock Exchange Topics

Wall Street Receives Brokers' Loans Gains With Indifference

THE moderate increase in brokers' loans over the past two weeks has been received with indifference along Wall street. They are still approximately 50 per cent below the peak reached October 16 last. Some bulls hold they will cause no great concern as long as they remain below $5,000,000,000. Remarkable is the fact that loans are up only $153,000,000 from the low of the year notwithstanding the big rise in stock prices, new listings on the exchange and heavy bond offerings for public subscription.

At the end of 1927 Continental Can had 15 plants in operation, whereas today there are 35 strategically located in this country and Cuba, indicating the company's growth the last two years. In most instances expansion has been financed through issuance of new stock. Scale buying has been in progress in Continental on all recessions recently from interests who consider the outlook favorable. Not only was there a small carryover in the food pack from last year, but the company is less dependent on the food pack than formerly, because the diversification program has resulted in about 30 per cent of the business coming from manufacture of containers for other industries.

SALES of Gliddden have been expanding and this should be reflected in substantial increases in earnings. In January the volume of business was $883,477 in excess of the corresponding month last year. There have been many economies in operations in the past few months which are now being reflected in the company's record. Buying by interests prominent in the stock on several occasions in the past has been reported again recently.

Not only has there been quiet, new buying in American Telephone and Telegraph, but those who purchased the stock at higher levels last summer have been averaging by adding to their long positions whenever the issue receded moderately. Those who always have been most optimistic on this issue maintain that eventually there must be a recapitalization, which would bring favorable developments for stockholders.

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVE has been comparatively inactive during most sessions in recent weeks. Traders who sold this issue on the rumor that a dividend reduction was coming have not had much opportunity to cover since it was denied officially that a cut in the distribution was contemplated. Any increase in public interest to the equipment stocks might bring increased buying into Locomotive.

Market factors which are most often mentioned by the bears just now are the lowering of commodity prices and the general uncertainty in many lines of industry. Bulls argue that these are more than counterbalanced by rising steel mill operations, moderate gains in automobile production, and government information of improvement in the unemployment situation. Ease in credit also is referred to as a favorable market influence.

Mexican Tobacco Taxes Increased

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24 — It is estimated that the increased taxes on tobacco, which went into effect last month, have raised the total manufacturing costs at Mexico City cigaret factories about $100,000 a month. The increased taxes consist of a 2c per cent internal revenue stamp tax and import duties on all foreign materials used of from 15 per cent to 40 per cent.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 — (AP.) — The curb market was moderately depressed by renewed pressure against the utilities today. Trading was resumed after the two day recess in a quiet and rather desultory fashion. The irregularity of the market late last week and the mixed and indecisive character of the week end business and trade report left traders in a cautious and uncertain frame of mind.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

These Figures Show America Now Is Giant

By B. C. FORBES

OUR own petty worries and the ups and downs reported day by day in the newspapers, tend to prevent us from contemplating how great has been the growth of our country, how enormous is our national wealth, how gigantic our annual income, how colossal the people's savings, how widespread the possession of capital, how immeasurable our natural resources.

Instead of concerning ourselves today whether this or that commodity moved up or down a fraction yesterday, or whether this or that stock advanced or declined a point, let us stand off a little and view some of our salient national facts.

NO FEWER than 2,434,000 individuals last year paid income taxes aggregating $2,330,-711,822.

Our national income for 1928 was authoritatively computed at $89,419,000,000, of which employes received $51,123,000,000. The average income of those who work was $1,898.

The net receipts of our farmers totaled $10,519,000,000.

BANKING resources in the United States aggregate $72,000,000,000, held by almost 25,000 banks.

Total savings at the end of June were $28,217,656,000, owned by 52,664,127 depositors.

Life insurance now exceeds $103,000,000,000, carried by 67,-000,000 policy holders.

We financed $9,403,000,000 of new securities last year, of which $4,523,000,000 consisted of stocks. An additional $3,500,000,000, or thereabout, was subscribed for through stock "rights" and similar methods.

The total number of stockholders in American enterprises increased very substantially last year and is now computed at upwards of 15,000,000 with a few millions of bondholders in addition.

America has invested abroad $16,604,000,000, of which $1,-677,000,000 was furnished last year.

Stock sales on the New York Stock Exchange alone in 1929 reached 1,124,990,000 shares and, on the New York Curb Exchange, 473,770,000 shares. At an average value of $100 a share (which, however, would be too high) the total turnover represented would be over $59,-000,000,000.

Dividend disbursements last year were computed at $4,462,000,000, an increase of approximately a billion over the previous year.

Our gross public debt was reduced $1,008,700,000 bringing the total to $16,300,921,051 at the beginning of 1930.

GIFTS for philanthropic purposes, including bequests, were figured at $2,450,000,000 for last year.

A TOTAL of 27,384,000 pupils, or fully 20 per cent of our total population, are enrolled in our schools. This figure, authorities state, represents 85 per cent of the total population falling within school age. Of the total number of pupils, 22,400,000 are in elementary schools, 3,900,000 in high schools, 820,000 in colleges and universities and 280,000 in teachers' colleges and normal schools.

MOTOR vehicles registered in the United States have reached 26,400,000, using 3,106,-000 miles of domestic highways.

Cars and trucks produced here and in Canada last year aggregated 5,651,000. Those employed in motor vehicle and allied lines now total 4,300,000.

Our railroads last year earned their greatest net operating income on record—$1,274,774,000—an increase of 6.7 per cent over 1928. The class I railroads, which earned this sum, operate 241,854 miles of line.

RETAIL sales in 1928, reports the Department of Commerce, totaled $41,000,000,000.

This year American telephones pass the 20,000,000 mark.

Building expenditures last year were $2,913,000,000.

Our 1929 exports reached $5,-248,483,000 and our imports $4,400,634,000.

We now use 97,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a year, consumers total 24,050,000, including 850,000 new customers added last year. Fully 20,000,-000 households now use electricity, and 500,000 farms are electrified. Each factory wage-earner now has nearly five horsepower at his command, more than twice that of 1900. The value of electric plant and equipment today is $11,000,000,-000. Gross revenue last year was $2,050,000,000.

Gas is used by 17,000,000 customers, whose bill last year was $950,000,000.

ADMISSIONS to motion pictures are paid to the tune of $800,000,000 a year, which, however, falls short of our candy bill of $1,000,000,000.

OUR national wealth approximates $360,000,000,000.

TEN years from now most of these figures, colossal though they are, will have been totally eclipsed. We are citizens of no mean nation.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The bond market plodded along at a slower pace in the early trading today. Prices were generally firm but supply and demand were so nearly equalized that changes from the Friday close were inconsequential.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, (abbreviated to naked requests (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

DAILY TRUE STORY

Meal Ticket

"THIS is Mrs. John Keene."

"Yes, Mrs. Keene?" answered the desk sergeant.

"You know, Keene, the furrier?" she gave the address. The desk sergeant knew the place, a beautiful mansion.

"There has been some trouble, an accident. Would you send up a detective right away, please? No one in uniform, please. I detest publicity."

"What sort of an accident, Mrs. Keene?"

"Why, er—I don't like to discuss it over a public telephone—but only send up a detective."

The desk sergeant promised. A few minutes later Curt Bryan of the detective department was on his way to the Keene mansion. When he arrived Mrs. Keene admitted him herself.

"The servants happen to be out; you are from headquarters?" she asked.

Bryan showed his badge and, contrary to fiction detectives, removed his hat with an inborn naturalness.

"My husband," she said, "has killed himself."

Something in the almost cooing smoothness of her voice made Bryan suspicious. He stiffened and stared at her.

"When?" he asked.

"Why—er—just a short time ago."

"Where?"

"Upstairs—it is his den."

"How?"

The three questions had been asked rather crisply. Mrs. John Keene reddened at this last curt question and her eyes flashed.

"If you please, I do not care for your manner—you seem to confuse me with some of the—er—lower types with whom you come in contact. My husband accidentally killed himself with a revolver."

Accident, Not Suicide

"Accident, not suicide?" Bryan asked, really trying to put a little more smoothness in his voice.

"Certainly—he had everything to live for—we were very happy and—"

"Show me." For the life of him Bryan couldn't refrain from being short and sharp in his manner. The mere air and manner of the woman filled him with suspicion—and antagonism.

She led the way upstairs.

John Keene was dead. That much was true. An automatic lay against one hand.

Bryan removed the folded handkerchief from his breast pocket, opened it, picked up the weapon by the muzzle and lay it in the handkerchief. Mrs. Keene smiled. Bryan caught the smile.

He examined the dead man, and the death wound. He removed everything from the pockets except a letter he felt in an inside pocket.

"Get me something to put these articles in—I must send for a coroner," he said, and added, "if you please," although it seemed to wrench him.

Curt Bryan worked on hunches. He slipped the letter in his pocket when she had turned to get a receptacle for the money, keys and sundry things that were in the pockets.

Then he telephoned to headquarters. A medical examiner would be sent up.

"Keep it off the blotter for the present," he said.

"That is very sensible of you," Mrs. Keene said.

"You know what that meant, then?"

Termed Murder

"Certainly—it means not to give the story to reporters. Look here's can't we just have a brief item, how my husband accidentally shot himself when cleaning out his desk—he always kept the weapon there for burglars?"

"Not very well," Bryan said, staring at her.

"But why not? Surely I can make it worth while—to escape notoriety."

"I'll tell you why not," said Bryan. "Because your husband didn't kill himself accidentally—"

"You think it was suicide, officer?"

"It was murder," he answered sharply.

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed.

"Who was here? Who did it?" he demanded.

"I tell you it was an accident, no one was here. I was in my own little boudoir at the other end of the house—"

She hesitated.

"Why did you kill him?" Bryan demanded, speaking rather softly this time.

"I didn't," she said and then, "this third-degree thing is for the ignorant and the criminal, not for a lady like myself. John had mentioned clearing out his desk—I heard the report and found him like this—he had no reason for suicide—"

The bell sounded. Bryan made her go down with him. A medical examiner and another officer in plain clothes arrived.

"You will sit there with the officer," Bryan said. He went about the place making examinations. He found something in her boudoir.

After a while Bryan went to the woman.

Accuses Woman

"He could not have held the gun far enough from him to keep powder marks from his dress shirt bosom. You wiped all fingermarks from the revolver—no marks on his shirt—and I have these private detective agency reports here—your husband had a sweetheart—a sort of show girl—you found it out and killed him. You might as well——"

Mrs. John Keene leaped up, her eyes blazing.

"All right, then, I did kill him," she said sharply, but with no show of emotion or fright.

"Do you think I was going to let any lousy chorus girl grab my meal ticket?"

Bryan recalled at this change in her talk stories to the effect that Mrs. John Keene had once been a waitress in a cheap beanery.

"You will have to go with us."

"Look here—thousands of women do the same as this and get away with it. I've got plenty of money, fix up bail for me. I won't be locked up—and tell me how much is it going to cost to get out of this?"

Bryan shook his head.

"Aw, have sense—money counts. I'm not dumb—you get your own big slice and the man higher up gets plenty, too—you can fix it. I've got cash here. I'll give some today, a hundred thousand, in case—" she bit her lip.

"Premeditated murder," Bryan said.

"I—I—" she paused and got back her nerve. "Come to my room with me. I'll get the cash—a cold hundred thousand—you can get me out of this. That chorus girl, gold-digger, May Myrtle—"

"Sit still and listen to this," Bryan said.

He produced the letter he had taken from the murdered man's pocket and read.

"Dearest John:

"Our show closes tonight. Tomorrow we go on the road. The road is hard for all chorus girls. This will be especially hard for me because it will be a one-way road that will never bring me back to you—and you have given me the only real love and happiness I ever knew.

"Strange that you should have taught me so much that was beautiful, taught me right and wrong. It has been four glorious years of knowing real love.

"When I met you, or you met me, or we just met each other and loved at sight, was it my fault that you had been led into marriage when you were under age, and with a pretty face and a beautiful but heartless body?

"Even then I wouldn't have gone to you if I had not known that this wife of yours had boasted about grabbing a meal ticket—and I also knew that she still had her secret affairs.

Young Admirer

"But dearest, we loved each other—you had been cheated—your wife hated you but loved your wealth. How happy I am that I never took money from you, only flowers, a few little jewels—and, of course, the apartment that was our little secret heaven.

"But I can't go on with this. You, your own dear self, are responsible for my decision. You taught me the beauty of many things—real music, real art—good books—and honesty. Strange, when we are legally dishonest, isn't it? But I just can't go on.

"I want a home—I want a family. I want you, but I cannot have you, that way—and my children must have a name, an honest name, I had.

"There is a fine young man out West, where I used to visit my dear grandmother. He wants me. He has been to see me many times. I don't love him—but I respect him. It is going to hurt, dearest—but we have the memories of four blissful years. I have told this young man about you, without naming you. Still he wants me. And so I am going on the road with the show, give my notice at the right time and marry my young man. He even agrees that our first son may be named John.

"Love has puzzled me. I once thought that love was life, but I have learned that love and life are things quite apart. Love is the means by which a saint may be rewarded or a sinner be damned.

"Play your part, be patient and, in the eyes of the world, a good dutiful husband.

"MAY."

"Well, of all things," and this time Mrs. Keene lost her self-control and shouted. "Then, 'Give me the letter—we can fix this up—money and good looks will get me out of it—it will get any woman out of anything."

Bryan tucked the letter in his pocket.

"The prosecuting attorney gets this letter and you'll get the chair," he said.

Commissioners, Decide Fate of Town Hall Now!

Quite a number of years ago the Chamber of Commerce, with commendable forethought and enterprise, began a movement having for its purpose the procuring of a Town Hall for Pittsburgh—really for Allegheny County.

It did its preliminary work so well that the people of the county were quick to see the necessity for such a structure, voted that it should be erected and provided the money with which to build it.

Yet we have no Town Hall.

It is more than two years (February 6, 1928), since a monster dinner-meeting was held under the auspices of the Town Hall Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in furtherance of the plan to have the County Commissioners include provision for it in the people's loan that was pending selection of a date for voting. There was great enthusiasm and Pittsburgh's need for such a structure was declared in speeches resounding with the fervor of civic pride.

As far as will was concerned, the people—prominent people from all parts of the county, representing city and county government and various civic organizations—gave evidence that they were in a mood to begin erection of a town hall, the following day. Even the Commissioners were boosters!

Yet we have no Town Hall, two years after, and no indication that we will have one two years hence unless the County Commissioners are suddenly to receive an impulse that they have a duty in the matter.

June 26, 1928, the imperative command of the people was heard. Voiced at the polls on that date, there was great joy among the promoters of the project because the people had said "BUILD" in no uncertain terms. Furthermore, they backed up their order by voting the sum of $6,000,000 for the purpose.

Now everybody knows there was need for some preliminary consideration to such a proposal in addition to the great study that had been made by the Chamber of Commerce Committee, but certainly six months should have been more than ample time for such deliberation. Had that been made the limit we would have been about the building of the Town Hall more than a year ago.

Why the County Commissioners do not come to some decision about the matter is one of the mysteries that the public cannot understand. It was to be expected that there would be local boosters for some sites, selection of which would be obviously foolish, and the Sun-Telegraph long ago commented to the effect that the County Commissioners eventually would have to step on somebody's toes by making the decision themselves and that they were only confusing matters by not promptly making the decision that they eventually would have to make anyway.

And because of all of this dilly-dallying we do not have even a site for a Town Hall, the campaign for which was begun eight years ago, the demand for which was so enthusiastically voiced in a big mass meeting more than two years ago, and ordered by the vote of the people a year and eight months ago.

It is time that the Board of County Commissionrs realized that to keep faith with the people it MUST DO SOMETHING.

Either decide to go ahead and build the Town Hall or to abandon the project altogether!

The people are entitled to action instead of further delay.

If the County Commissioners cannot determine from the surveys already made as to which proposed location gives promise of assuring commercial success for the structure they should make an admission of that fact and wipe the whole thing off the slate.

The building of the Town Hall, if the proper site is selected, will be the answer to the need of the community for a more commodious meeting place. The matter of that necessity existing was pointed out long ago and need not be repeated. The point is that building operations would be the fulfillment of the convenience.

Furthermore, it would be in line with President Hoover's program of industrial activity and a contribution to the prosperity that accompanies such activities.

It is time to act—either select a site and build or throw the whole thing overboard. Build or let the people know that the $6,000,000 they voted has been turned back to them and will not become a charge against the bond limit of the county!

We want a Town Hall—not further delay. If we are not going to get it let that be known at once!

Common Pleas Court Problem Needs Solution

The Common Pleas Court appears to be in a most deplorable condition from the standpoint of its ability to care for cases demanding attention. There are said to be more than 4,000 of them. This, to a layman, appears to be sufficient to call for the attention of the entire bench for a long time, and there is no full bench.

The seriousness of the situation was revealed the other day when it became known that 150 jurors were sitting around the assignment room waiting for something to do. And that six of the 14 judges of the Common Pleas Court were absent because of illness or vacation.

Now illness cannot be avoided and judges, especially the elder men, must have their rest, but soon or late something will have to be done about the problem of the Common Pleas Court. Lawyers know that it is not functioning as it should and that the unusual situation now prevailing is one that calls for deep consideration.

Some of our judges are well advanced in years, hence cannot be expected to be as vigorous and active as younger men. They have earned honorable leisure as well as the deep gratitude of the public and their wisdom doubtless is the greater through their long service. To suggest retirement would be cruel, but it appears likely the routine of the court must be arranged with the idea that a too heavy burden cannot be placed on the veterans.

An Old Mexican Custom

Going Out of Style,

President Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico, has had a bullet removed from his jaw. Maybe that explains his recent order to members of the Mexican Congress to check their guns outside before they enter the legislative chamber. Heretofore, solons across the Rio Grande have carried their artillery with them. Debates in the Halls of Montezuma have meant something.

But Senor Rubio's order, however wise, seems incomplete. It doesn't cover those cases where a Congressman is half shot. Perhaps, of course, they are not a problem in Mexico.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

American Beauty Team

IT is usual to reward all diplomats and couriers who have served their countries in times of stress and broadcasting.

"Bugs" Baer

We congratulate the good and faithful servants of international renown who made the London naval parley a success. The result was about the same as reading tea leaves in a cup.

To Monsieur Le Blink we give the order of the paper hat of the third class.

We knight Sir Bradwell Ookister by slapping him over the crown with a bladder. Rise, Sir Knight and chin no more.

Secretary Blott of the indoor navy is awarded the punctured lily cup. The secretary obeyed orders, thereby showing a lack of initiative, self-reliance and insubordination that characterizes republics.

This convention served one purpose. It proved that American stenographers are the most beautiful in the world.

Our typists won the beauty parade from Ambassador Dawes, Ramsey MacDonald and Mr. Stimson.

George Bernard Shaw did not compete. He was home putting up his whiskers in curl papers.

The best advertisement any nation can have is pretty girls. If you don't think so read the papers and magazines.

The stripes on the American flag are blonde and brunette. And the stars are eyes.

We should establish a winking fund for lady diplomats. History shows that the girls have ruled the world since the dawn of taxes and will continue to do so even if otherwise notified.

Sheba, Cleopatra, Helen and Gaby were all members of the ladies' auxiliary. The judge would have married Maude Muller if he didn't have hay fever.

If we have to be represented in international caucus by Pollyannas they might as well be of the correct sex. As for ability and acumen we know that American stenographers could run any business better if their bosses would golf every day.

Washington's Hair Cloth Shirts

By Herbert Kaufman

QUITE a considerable batch of hair cloth shirts, which Mr. Hoover concludes were among the customary tribulations of his predecessors, will be found marked with George Washington's initials.

Not a few of these are cut on IDENTICAL patterns of the quandaries in which the President of the United States is NOW wriggling.

If the two executives might compare notes, they would find political situations repeat themselves as often as history.

Washington could remind Hoover that his administration was ALSO under suspicion of pro-British leanings.

Washington's Supreme Court was ALSO assailed as a servant of vested interests instead of popular causes.

Radical sentiment began to heckle the conservatism and reputed bourbon tendencies in that austere body before it was FAIRLY seated.

THE government's EARLIEST negotiations with Paris met with the same exasperations and solitaire plays as confound America's LAST effort to reach an understanding with the trickiest bargainers in Europe.

And Washington ALSO HAD HIS LIQUOR MUDDLE which ended in open rebellion and compelled suppression by ARMED FORCE.

The father of his country might have been "first in war and first in peace," but an examination of contemporary newspaper files will produce abundant evidence that he wasn't ENTIRELY "first in the hearts of his countrymen."

As many brickbats were hurled at his integrity, capacity and loyalty as Andy Jackson ever dodged or Andy Johnson ducked. Partisanship was always slipping a COCKLEBURR beneath his saddle.

Demagogues were NEVER wanting in either House of Congress to block his PROGRAMS and besmirch his policies.

Slander and opprobrium villainously bandied his fair name.

HIS cabinet meetings were reduced to the level of brawls by the violent squabbles of Jefferson and Hamilton, who refused, from first to last, to work in the same harness and persistently embarrassed him by public exposure of their rabid mutual hate.

Both these men, with their eyes fixed upon the succession, devoted more time to mending private political fences than the fulfillment of their OFFICIAL responsibilities.

Hamilton's frankly avowed opinion that the influence of the House should be minimized by a Senate of INTELLECTUALS and PROPERTY-HOLDERS, to be selected in perpetuity—and Jefferson's equally vehement conviction that majority power should be ENLARGED exposed Washington to a cross-fire that cruelly riddle his highest purposes.

And if his cross weren't ALREADY heavy enough to break the spirit of any but a SUPREME captain of destiny, John Adams, his OWN Vice President, had to contribute his HELPFUL little bit by contemptuously referring to democracy as "that beast."

Haircloth shirts? Hoover doesn't know the HALF of it.

NOBODY ever dubbed HIM a Nero or likened HIM to a defaulter or classified HIS morals with a PICKPOCKET'S.

You can bet your bottom dollar that Washington didn't want a THIRD term. And if TRUTH were told, its EVEN odds that he COULDN'T have had it.

The jeers that rang from the opposition press as his carriage rolled back to Mt. Vernon, re-attest the traditional ingratitude of ALL republics.

If ONLY he had been as BOLD in the CABINET as in the FIELD!

A wise, gentle and right-visioned man, THAT!

And in reverence to his memory, let us harken to his fervid prayer, that posterity should "steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

And if you don't recall the INSPIRATION of that portentous utterance, consult history and learn what happened a hundred-odd years ago, when France and the United States WERE committed to an agreement, very similar to the sort of pact that France AGAIN hopes to wheedle from the Hoover administration.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

THESE incredible new buildings, soaring like dream cliffs above the small, dark clutter of the streets . . . have you thought about them? Have you thought what they mean in human history . . . in YOUR history? They are more than a new idea in life. Something has happened . . . something that is bound to affect YOU, as well as all other men.

There's that new store of Bullock's on Wilshire boulevard, in Los Angeles . . . seen it? You'll not forget it easily, if you have. Riding up the boulevard, you see it taking off at the end of the long vista . . . piling itself up into the air like a fountain . . . pouring and piling and mounting upon its own substance until it hangs gleaming, translucent, caught in the blue, arching sunlight.

The long, lovely uprush of it! The terrible simplicity of it, simple as earth and air and fire are simple—as though a thought had suddenly been caught in stone and cement, without the touch of hands.

Inside, that same tremendous simplicity. No curves. No fumbling joints or prettied angles, flat surfaces .... stark angles .... planes. Like walking in a diamond. Even the wide, bright, uncluttered air seemed faceted. Flat surfaces unfolding....meeting each other delicately but without compromise .... opening out and out into wide corridors .... angled vaults .... flat surfaces.

People didn't build like that 60 years ago. They built fussy, fumbling buildings. They thought fussy, fumbling thoughts. They lived fussy, fumbling lives.

Then came the war, crashing into the fussing like dynamite . . . eating into the fumbling like acid . . . stripping thought . . . stripping action . . . leaving men naked, to start all over again. Leaving men hating the old fussing and fumbling . . . wanting something stronger . . . braver. . .more honest. Leaving men with a new hope.

Now men are trying to put that hope into action. . .into writing . . .into music. . .into education . . .into business . . .into building. . .into strong, simple, ruthlessly honest building.

Not easy to get used to these things....

And even harder to get used to the hope that lies behind them .... the hope of honesty...the hunger for simplicity.

Nothing harder to live than an honest, simple life...a life of strong, plain surfaces...clean color....uncompromising angles. But we're reaching toward it at last. Little cluttered buildings are going out .. little, cluttered lives are going out ... at the end of the long vista the new hope rises.... gleaming....translucent ... piling up and up....into the light!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

HERE again, then, we have an alternation of generations—the sporogonium gives rise to spores, each spore give rise through a protonema to one or more moss plants, the moss plant gives rise to spermatozoa and egg cells and the fertilized egg cells give rise to a sporogonium again.

The chief difference between a moss and a fern is that in the latter the spore-bearing phase of the cycle is larger and more elaborately organized than the gamete-bearing phase, while in the former the reverse is the case. But there is another important difference, for mosses lack the "vascular tissue" of the stem—the installation of pipes along which fluids are driven from roots to leaves and from leaves to roots.

H. G. Wells

Their transport arrangements are very primitive and inefficient, and for this reason they never develop any impressive architecture; leaves and roots must be close together and a stem that soars for any considerable distance is quite impossible. The tallest and stateliest mosses, found in New Zealand, reach a height of about 20 inches.

Related to the mosses are the liverworts, similar, but even humbler in structure. The two together are spoken of as the Bryophyta, or moss-like plants.

Now, here is a curious and fascinating series of homologues.

We have in the fern cycle (a) fern plant, (b) spores, (c) prothallus, (d) spermatozoa and ovum, (e) fertilized ovum and so back to (a) fern plant.

In the moss we have the equivalent of the fern plant in (a) the subordinated sporogonium which produces (b) the moss spores and so leads with the insertion of a little vegetative spreading and breaking up to (c) the moss plant, which is plainly not the equivalent of a fern plant at all, and so on to (d), (e) and back to (a) the sporogonium.

So the fern plant is an exalted sporogonium and the moss plant is not the equivalent (homologue) of the fern plant; it is an exalted prothallus.

Now let us turn back to the flowering plant. It has vascular tissue like the ferns, and through a great number of intermediates, we can trace its homology to the fern-plant. It is still more exalted sporogonium. Where is its spores?

Well, it happens that among some of the pteridophyta—in the club-mosses, to be precise—there are two sorts of spores and two sorts of prothalli. There are female prothalli producing egg-cells only, waiting in their tiny flasks, and male prothalli producing the active spermatozoa.

Moreover, the spores that grow into female prothalli are bigger than those that give rise to the male prothalli—indeed, the latter are just about the size of a pollen-grain. And the lives of the prothalli are short, they are even smaller and more insignificant than the prothalli of ferns.

The plant-tissue is, so to speak, going all out for the sexless generation; it bustles perfunctorily through that ancient and venerable formality the prothallus and gets it over as soon as possible, like a chaplain saying a rudimentary grace before he gets down to the business of eating.

And now let us turn to the more primitive seed-plants—to the conifers and cycads and the like. Here there is an even more swiftly gabbled prothallus.

A pollen-grain, we noted, does not fertilize an ovum simply and straightforwardly as a spermatozoon does; it settles near the ovum and germinates and sprouts a little mass of tissue, growing like a thirsty roots toward the ovium, and forming several cells; and only a bit of it actually accomplishes fertilization.

This looks suspiciously like the growth of a male prothallus. And the comparison is clinched by a curious fact; whereas in most seed plants the fertilizing elements are very different in appearance from the spermatozoa of ferns there are one or two exceptions—the gingko or maidenhair tree and the cycads in which the sprouting pollen grain gives rise to spermatozoa for all the world like the spermatozoa of ferns or mosses, which swim up to the ova and fertilize them.

The pollen grain of all these plants then is not a gamete but a spore, and it gives rise to a rudimentary male prothallus. And on the female side there is a similar story.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Diary of a modern Pepys: To the barber to be trimmed and occupied a chair next to Vincent Astor, who slept through the ordeal. So to see Carl L. Seitz, of Shanghai, who has brought his son Clayton here to enter business in the city and as fine a lad as I know.

In the afternoon driving to Sing Sing to greet a prisoner released after many weary years in gaol, and drove him to the station to board a Western train. And he in complete silence and immobile all the way, save for twisting a handkerchief into an agonizing knot, poor fellow.

At my labors but weary and with my wife through town and loitered in a jewelry auction room, at whose gyppery I frequently hoot and made a purchase or two, like a brush ape. Home and came Horace W. Karr, of Cincinnati, an esteemed friend of youth, and Roger W. Selby, the shoe merchant, and we sat late.

Peter Arno, a deft delineator in black and white, is rumored tiring of contributing further to the bizarrerie—maybe it isn't right, but doesn't it sound katish? of New York sophisticates, and is planning a jaunt to Europe for a long stay. Arno created the hilarious "Whoops Sisters" for a weekly, and airily spurned a neat offer to incorporate the idea in a comic strip because, O, dear, O, dear, it ran afoul of artistic ideals.

* * *

Charles Dana Gibson at the pinnacle of the Gibson girl craze suddenly "tired of it all" and deserted a fabulous income for the uncertainties of portrait painting in London. But he did not tarry long, and returned gladly to the field in which he had won eminence. Sooner or later they all come back. And a yoo-hoo for Frank O'Malley.

* * *

Most of us nurse a sneaking notion we can do something else better than the job in hand. Every financier I ever met is secretly plotting, when he can get around to it, of course, "to write a book." A best selling novelist spent a fortune in a scientific ranching experiment that was a total loss. And I never saw the newspaper I couldn't edit better than the editor in charge—yet the only one I ever edited was a mighty flop. I can still hear it.

* * *

In Forty-seventh street one evening last summer a shuffling figure stepped out of the shadows and inquired if I knew where he could find a place to sleep for the night. He was wretchedly unkempt, but there was an unprofessional embarrassment in his manner. He accompanied me to a lodging house on Sixth avenue, where I paid for his room and gave the clerk change to send out for something to eat. The total expenditure was $1.60. How he learned my identity I do not know, but in the mail yesterday was a cryptic letter which read: "Thanks for a good turn. I never begged before." Pinned to the letter were two one dollar bills. And if he happens to see this I will be glad to return his forty cents over payment and direct him to a fairly good job in a factory near New York.

At one time in my life I was broke, hungry and jobless in a city where I had lived but two weeks. The room key-hole had been plugged for non-payment of rent and I was ashamed to wire or write home for aid. Twice on one of the prominent corners I circled about strangers trying to summon courage to tell them of my dilemma, but couldn't. And since I have been an easy mark for street beggers. Out of all the professionals there may be an occasional amateur.

* * *

But here's poverty to glorious wealth in a skip. In three weeks I have been notified of falling heir to two large legacies—one in England and one in South Africa. When you get on that sucker list you are considered Grade A.

As absurd as it sounds, the legacy racket has made fortunes for racketeers. All they need is the directory of an American city. The trick is to extract a $10 fee for transcript of the mythical will. That ends it. In London's Fleet street a big office building is filled with sharpers who victimize Americans.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IT IS unwise to seek compliments.

You may not get what you desire or you may be told what pleases you, but something that is untrue.

Those who like to make you feel comfortable and happy usually say something complimentary.

To be told of your faults might be more valuable.

Of course, a dose of bitter criticism is not easy to take, but it might effect a cure which would work for your good.

Once in a while we find a friend who is absolutely honest to the extent of giving his true opinion of us. But you can't expect to have many of this kind for it makes too large a demand on friendship and few are willing to risk it.

If you are earnestly eager to hear the truth, ask what are your bad points, what are your disagreeable traits, and see what you get.

Don't ask to have your good points enumerated.

You have little tricks that are mighty disagreeable to others and you should find out what they are so that you can rid yourself of them.

And having learned what they are, don't be too stubborn to try to overcome them.
